LEOPARD AGAIN IN CUSTODY

SEARCH OBJECT since escape Saturday from Oklahoma City zoo was this 175-pound wild leopard. Lured back yesterday by doped horse meat, beast had terrorized town and had been pursued by hounds and armed hunters with "shoot-to-kill" orders. Wild Leopard Is Captured By Use of Drugged Meat

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Oklahoma City's escaped leopard was captured alive at its pit today—felled by a "mickey."

Knockout drops placed in chunks of horse meat subdued the ferocious jungle cat long enough for him to be captured.

Zoo keeper Julian Frazier slipped a noose around the drugged animal's neck and held him while he was caged.

Hunger finally drove the beast back to Lincoln Park Zoo, the only home he had known since being brought here a week ago from the jungles of India.

ESCAPED SATURDAY

He had been free since one p.m. Saturday when he leaped from a barless pit, 18 feet deep, and scampered away while onlookers stood frozen with terror.

Thousands of hunters had stalked the cat since his escape. Airplanes, helicopters and specially-trained dogs were employed in the search.

But an empty stomach and perhaps a yearning for the mate he left behind prompted the fugitive to return the same way he left—of his own accord.

The leopard was found groggy by park employes and a game ranger as he was slinking sleepily toward the bait placed near his pit.

Frazier had given up all hope of capturing the animal shortly after it escaped.

DOGS, HUNTERS USED

The "shoot to kill" order was sent out for the leopard, which was less than 60 days out of the jungle.

Frazier estimated the leopard was at least 18 miles from the zoo before it returned, to gnaw at the tainted meat.

"This is the only meat ticket he knew," Frazier said. "He had just been here a week but those things are smart."

Seizure of American Mines Seen As Strike Continues

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP)—The government went ahead today with the contempt trial of John L. Lewis' miners' union, amid still more talk of possible government seizure of the mines and a continuing spread of troubles from the coal shortage.

One government official offered the personal view that government seizure would appear inevitable if there is not real progress today toward a strike settlement.

However, all contract talks were off for the present.

The chances of getting the mines back to work seemed as bleak as ever. Cold waves gripping a large part of the United States made the fuel shortage felt even more acutely.

More and more industries were closing down. Schools were closing.

Against this background government attorneys presented their contempt case in federal court here to Judge Richmond B. Keech.

The government contends the United Mine Workers union is guilty of both civil and criminal contempt because the miners disobeyed the court's Feb. 11 back-to-work order.

FINE ONLY WEAPON

A possible multi-million dollar fine against the UMA, whose treasury is estimated at between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000, is the only weapon the government now has to try to get the miners back.

But will they return even after a fine? Their mood, as reflected in comments from the coal fields, is they won't go back until they get a new work contract. Meanwhile, the idle total resulting from the three-week general mine walkout now is well past the 500,000-mark.

RUBLE IS REVALUED, RUSSIAN PRICES CUT

MOSCOW, Feb. 28.—(UP)—Russia revalued the ruble and cut the prices of food and clothing tonight.

It was the Soviet Union's third great economic readjustment since the war.

The reduction in the prices of foodstuffs and manufactured articles ranged from 10 to 14 per cent. Precisely a year ago today price cuts of about the same range were decreed.

The government put the ruble on a gold basis and stepped up its relative value to the American dollar. The old official rate was 5.3 rubles to the dollar. The new is four to the dollar.

Province to Adopt County Gov't Plan

County council system, which may eventually revolutionize school, hospital and municipal government, was subject of one bill and two speeches in Alberta legislature yesterday.

The County Act was introduced by Hon. C. E. Gerhart, minister of municipal affairs, and was given first reading.

If it gains legislative approval it will permit local school, hospital and municipal administrative boards to unite under a single council.

The minister would have authority to declare an area a county.

Mr. Gerhart told The Bulletin that county government would not be forced upon any district unless it was necessary because of grievances between present governing bodies.

Chairman of the council will assume the present duties of the municipal reeve, chairman of the school board, and chairman of the hospital board.

3 COUNTY COMMITTEES

Councillors for the county council will be elected from the county at large, without officials of the town or villages automatically gaining seats.

Working with county council will be three committees, one each for school, municipal and hospital administration.

Low-Interest Loan Forecast For Edmonton

City of Edmonton will likely receive at least $750,000 of a $4,000,000 low interest rate loan being made to municipalities in Alberta by the provincial government, The Bulletin learned today.

The government intends to put a total of at least $4,000,000 at the disposal of municipalities in a revolving loan fund for self-liquidating public works projects.

INTEREST TO BE LOW

Cities may use the money to finance their own housing scheme, it is believed.

In Edmonton, the funds would likely be used instead to extend utilities, probably in servicing of new building lots.

Interest charged on the loan will be not more than two and a half per cent.

City of Calgary is likely to share about $500,000 of the loan, while various other cities and municipalities will have access to smaller amounts.

This afternoon, members of the legislature are discussing a motion presented by Gordon Taylor (SC-Drumheller) urging the provincial government to give further consideration to assisting municipalities in financing self-liquidating public works projects.

Throne speech presented in the legislature last week hinted at the possibility of special assistance to municipalities. It is believed that the $4,000,000 to be placed in the revolving loan fund will constitute this assistance.

Line Will Open Hard Coal Field

By Pat McVeat
Bulletin Staff Writer

A $6,000,000 railway link to Alberta's fabulous Highwood coal field—one of the biggest beds of hard coal in Canada—will be built this year, The Bulletin learned today.

Privately built, the railroad will be extended from Calgary for 65 miles southwest into the foothills area and the Highwood anthracite coal field.

It will be known as the Highwood Western Railway Co., a subsidiary of the Ford Highwood Collieries which will work the coal field.

A petition to permit the company to proceed with operations will be brought before the current session of Alberta legislature by J. C. Landeryou, Social Credit member of Lethbridge.

(A bill previously before the legislature in 1946 obliged company to start the railway by 1948 and to finish it within five years.)

Solicitor of the railway, Gordon H. Allen of Calgary, told the Bulletin company officials intend to start construction of the railway this year.

"BEST COAL IN AMERICA"

The project will be financed by eastern capital. About $6,000,000 will be spent to build the railway to open the mine, and to instal the necessary equipment, Mr. Allen said.

The Highwood coal field was discovered decades ago by the late Harry Ford of Calgary. For 20 years, Ford made efforts to induce financial interests to construct a railway and develop the coal field.

Subsequent geological studies proved the field even greater in potentialities than Ford believed. It is probably Canada's biggest hard coal deposit. A few weeks ago, Hon. James G. Gardiner, federal agricultural minister described the field as containing "the best coal on the continent."

Ford's estate has an interest in the Ford Highwood Collieries and in the railway, Mr. Allen said.

MARKET ASSURED

The company is certain that an adequate market for the Highwood product is assured. The hard coal output will be shipped over the new railway to Calgary and thence to eastern Canadian markets.

At Toronto and other eastern points it will be sold at prices below that which coal from the United States now demands, company officials believe.

Strip mining is planned as the company's initial operation. Afterwards underground mines will be developed.

Gas Pipeline Vital To B.C.

VICTORIA, B.C. Feb. 28.—(BUP)—If the gas pipeline from Alberta does not come through B.C., the province will be set back industrially many many years, Lands and Forests Minister E. T. Kenney said.

"We should do our utmost to see an all-Canadian route is selected," Kenney told the B.C. legislature yesterday.

Westcoast Transmission Company have applied for licence to export natural gas through an all-Canadian pipeline to the Pacific coast.

Council Okay Given Plan Of Detwiler

First step in getting necessary charter authority to deal with L. E. Detwiler's Miracle Mile proposal on a tax-concession basis was taken last night by city council.

It agreed, over Ald. Fred Mitchell's dogged objections to a lengthy resolution approving principle of Mr. Detwiler's suggestions "or other developments of a like nature."

It instructed commissioners to apply to the legislature for a charter amendment allowing council to make a deal for Civic Centre development on a basis of tax concessions or adjustment.

NOT SPECIFIC ENOUGH YET

The resolution said First New Amsterdam Corporation's report and designs, submitted through Mr. Detwiler, appear desirable, and if and when completed, would prove beneficial to the city.

In view of public services provided, such as auditorium, art museum, market and parking areas, together with resultant stabilization and increase of down town property values "special consideration of tax concessions would appear justified."

But the present proposal is not sufficiently specific to enable a contract to be drawn, it continues.

Nevertheless, council approves in principle of the development or others like it.

It instructs commissioners to seek a charter amendment giving council power to agree to development of the Civic Centre area, from 101A to 104 avenues between 99 and 100 streets, conditional on two factors:

1. The federal government abandoning

Attlee Revamps Gov't But New Election Seen

LONDON, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Prime Minister Attlee, who won a shaky victory in Thursday's British general election, has revamped his Labor cabinet.

Attlee had an hour's audience with the King last night after spending the day forming his new cabinet and conferring with party leaders.

Just what changes Attlee would make in his cabinet were kept secret.

But chief post to be filled was that of colonial secretary, which became vacant with the election defeat of Arthur Creech Jones.

The changes were expected to be announced before the newly-elected parliament meets tomorrow.

TRUCE FORECAST

With ruling Labor whittled down to a working majority of only seven seats in the House of Commons, there is much speculation that the bringing on new elections, program of nationalization of industry and other socialist measures will be considerably modified to avoid an immediate showdown.

Most political observers speculated that Labor will attempt to stay in power at least until the 1950 budget is presented.

Reports that Attlee had shelved Labor's program for putting more industry into the hands of the state led to the belief there might be a kind of unwritten political truce between the major parties until the main budget appropriations are passed.

But it was almost universally assumed that the government sooner or later would be forced to resign.

Detwiler Plan Wins City Council Okay

doning its rights to the market square site of a new federal building;

2. Such guarantees for completion of the development as council may require, with power for council to grant such tax concessions as it may decide are in the public interest.

Ald. Mitchell bitterly denounced Mr. Detwiler's proposal for a 99-year lease, with the city getting 25 per cent of the net revenues from the $25 million building and a parking development, with no minimum guarantee per year, as a move to get underneath the city's whole tax structure.

It would in effect tie up whole development of the city for 18 months, he charged.

Edmonton and Alberta are just beginning to come into their own, he said.

"We can handle development by ourselves," Mitchell said. "Let's get the $25 million and build it ourselves, without having to give 75 per cent of the profits away.

"Mr. Detwiler isn't going to be the first taxing authority here," he said.

OPPOSITION ON RECORD

After the resolution emerged from the committee-of-the-whole stage over its opposing vote, Ald. Mitchell moved the item be deleted from the committee's report to council. There was no seconder. He then asked that his opposition be recorded in the minutes.

Ald. Dick Hanna said he made no apology for his enthusiasm for the scheme outlined by Mr. Detwiler, but council should insist on a minimum revenue guarantee per year in any contract. His motion not to accept it without a guarantee gained no seconder and died.

Acting Mayor Athelstan Blatchford threw out an invitation to any local citizens interested in financing such a development with Edmonton money. He said the resolution does not necessarily mean council will conclude any deal with Mr. Detwiler, but he hoped it will.

"We must not lose sight of the fact that the men who envisaged the present proposal also plan greater expenditures as the city grows," he said.

GUARANTEES ASKED

City Solicitor Tom Garside said the resolution guarantees "the deal won't collapse in the middle." It will prevent Detwiler interests from taking over the land without council being certain that building will be undertaken and completed.

This came in response to Ald. Ken Lawson's insistence that council should get proof the money will be forthcoming before spending any more time talking about it.

If the Detwiler plans do not materialize, the city will be faced with expenditures for millions of dollars on market, auditorium and parking facilities, said Ald. Harold Tanner. The layout produced by Mr. Detwiler and his associates within three weeks of his first visit here are "far in advance of anything produced here over years."

WELCOMES U.S. CAPITAL

Ald. Tanner castigated criticisms of U.S. money being introduced for the development. "It's high time we had some of the big insurance companies' development funds up here, after years of seeing it go to Cuba for sugar development, and to other places," he said.

"This deal, which gives us 25 per cent of the profits, is simply too good to turn down. We'd make a big mistake if we refuse it," he said.

Commissioner John Hodgson supported the Detwiler scheme as the only practicable answer to Edmonton's growing parking problem and as an answer to development of the city's long-vacant Civic Centre area.

'REAL PEOPLE'—'REAL MONEY'

Mr. Detwiler, who he said is only the promoter of the scheme, came to Edmonton only because a staff of experts had come before and made a "top to bottom" survey of the city.

"Because of their report that this is the only city in Canada or North America where such a plan can be presented, Mr. Detwiler came with his plans," said Mr. Hodgson.

"Don't let us cast skepticism on it because we were let down on the Glenton hotel promotion. I think the present plan has tremendous possibilities, and I'm aghast that anyone thinks of turning it down as flatly as is suggested here tonight."

Most essential fact to Mr. Hodgson was the fact that "these are real people, with real money, who have been doing this type of development in cities all across the United States. That can be easily proved with a visit to New York."

Conventions would come to Edmonton from all over Canada and the U.S., he said, when the development is complete.

He cited "enormous profits" in which the city would share as 25 per cent partner after the initial investment has been retired.

For 40 years the city has gotten nothing in taxes from the civic centre area, and such buildings as federal building city hall and auditorium would never produce any revenue whatever, he said.

"Certainly we would get all the business taxes, together with the auditorium and market and the rise in surrounding property values, from the scheme. In one year it would revolutionize all the dead values in the areas adjacent to it. Values on 97, 98 and 99 streets would go out of sight."

"This scheme gives us taxes and beauty together. I have yet to find a man who hasn't a good word for it, because we stand to gain untold millions," said Mr. Hodgson.

Rail Figures Wrong Union Tells Board

Conciliators in Wage-Hour Claim Are Given Conflicting Estimates

MONTREAL, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Canadian railways told a federal conciliation board yesterday that union demands in a wage-hour dispute would mean a 20 per cent increase in existing pay rates while a union-certified figures are out of line.

The conciliation board, headed by Mr. Justice J. C. Wilson of the supreme court of British Columbia, is hearing demands of 15 international brotherhoods for the 40-hour week with the same take-home pay as the present 48-hour week plus a seven-cents-hourly wage increase.

TWO CONCILIATION BOARDS

Submissions yesterday constituted rebuttals to arguments raised before the board adjourned its sessions last January. The hearings affect more than 100,000 workers in the non-operating trades.

Another board, also headed by Mr. Justice Wilson, is expected to hear rebuttals today in a dispute between the railways and the 30,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Employes (CCL) which is making demands similar to those of the international brotherhoods.

The railways maintained there is no doubt that increased hourly and daily rates would be used as a standard of comparison by employes in other industries without regard to the question whether the wage increase was or was not accompanied by a decrease in hours of work.

"NO SERIOUS INEQUITY"

In the opening sittings, the railways opposed union demands, contending that they could not be met without increasing freight rates; that economic conditions in Canada could not be compared with those in United States and that rail wages and working conditions compare favorably with those in the U.S.

The railways, in a submission read by S. M. Gossage, assistant manager of Canadian Pacific Railway's department of personnel, said they had made their case in their January submissions but there were specific points that required argument.

One was the union contention that increased efficiency and productivity soon absorb any increased cost arising from their demands.

"Greater productivity arises from investment in new and more efficient facilities and machines," said the railways. "The furnishing of capital for such investment depends on the credit situation of the railways.

"When net earnings from railway operations are at as low a level at present it is time to move to engage the fruits of future possible investment to meet the cost of wage increases that are not made necessary by any serious or outstanding inequity."

Nazi Documents Show Munich Stopped War

By Pamela Matthews

LONDON, Feb. 28.—(Reuters)—Determination of the German government to risk war in autumn, 1938, over the Sudeten crisis with Czechoslovakia appears proven by German foreign office documents published today under British, United States and French auspices.

These captured documents, covering German-Czechoslavak relations in the critical period October, 1937, to September, 1938, show a growing determination on the part of Hitler to "solve" the Czech crisis by mid-October of 1938, regardless of the possibility of a world war.

A memorandum from Ernst Von Weizsacker, then secretary of the German foreign office, July 21, 1938, reports the Reich foreign minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, as stating:

"If necessary we would run the risk of a full-scale war with the western powers even now and win it too."

HITLER DETERMINED

An unsigned minute, attributed to Weizsacker, says:

"During a conversation with Reich minister Von Ribbentrop Aug. 19, he explained to me that the Fuehrer was firmly resolved to settle the Czech affair by force of arms. He described the middle of October as the latest possible date because of technical reasons governing air operations."

Observers here said these revelations make it clear that the issue before the western powers in October, 1938, was war and that there was in fact no possibility of buying off Nazi claims other than by the concessions which were made in the Munich agreement.

MAY ELIMINATE CONFLICTS

Municipal affairs committee will be made up of three elected councillors and three appointed electors. Hospital and school committees will each have up to seven members, including three county councillors, and one to three elected councillors and three appointed electors. Hospital and school committees will each have up to seven members, including three county councillors, and one to three appointed electors, together with representatives of villages and towns within the county.

Speaking in the debate on the speech from the Throne, Mr. Gerhart said one single elected body to handle local government—municipal, hospital and school administration — should eliminate many of the conflicts now arising between school and municipal bodies.

L. C. Halmrast (SC-Warner) told the House some local government officials are still opposed to the county system of government. "If the scheme is introduced on a voluntary and experimental basis in some districts, we will see other areas asking for the county system," he said.

Jasper Clearing Work Unearths Ancient Coin

Demolition of old Jasper avenue landmarks to make way for the Macdonald hotel extension is right on schedule.

Adby Construction and Demolition company officials, in charge of clearing, announced today successful completion of the contract with the city well within the time limit.

The Adby firm was to clear away buildings from three lots on the south side of Jasper avenue before midnight tonight.

"We are actually ahead of schedule and have had to slow down for the past two days," an official said.

OLD COIN

Four buildings, two brick and two frame, were torn down since demolition work started 12 days ago.

Nothing in the way of old treasure turned up in the work.

One workman found a 50-cent Queen Victoria coin, dated 1867. He has refused an early offer of three dollars for the old coin.

The Robb Coffee shop on the corner of Jasper avenue and 100 street, has had a shaky existence since the building next door was torn down. The Robb building has a "reprieve" until April 30.

When workmen tore down the building to the west they took away part of the Robb building east wall and a hurried job of boarding and papering had to be done to keep the coffee house weather-proofed.

IN KITCHEN

Later when a projecting roof from an adjoining building was being taken down, workers found themselves looking right down into the Robb kitchen. More patching had to be done in a hurry.

The Adby company has sold all the brick on the spot but much of the lumber from the old buildings is being stockpiled.

PERMITS DOUBLED

On March 15 the company starts clearing out the Mandarin Gardens building. Other buildings to the east will be next in line for demolition.

The Mandarin Gardens must be levelled by April 1.

The Adby firm had to move its own demolition offices from the rear of the Yellow Cab Co. office to premises formerly occupied by Melton Real Estate Company on 100 street.

City building permits issued during February have more than doubled the January total, according to figures released by building inspector's department.

February total to date is $952,932, compared with a January total of $540,212.

House building permits stand at $207,000, compared with a total of $87,000 during January.

Car Licence Fee Cut Is Suggested

Finances Of Province Cited As Good Reason

Question of seeking a reduction in Alberta motor licence fees is expected to be brought up at the March 7 meeting of the Alberta Motor Association, it was learned today.

A number of the association members for some time have been gunning for a reduction, officials said, and base their claim on the favorable financial position of the province.

HIGHEST

Motor licences in Alberta are among the highest in cost on the North American continent, AMA spokesman said, and the financial position of the government is such that a reduction could be given without materially damaging the treasury.

The meeting will deal with the association's preparations for the new motoring season.

H. R. Chauncey, Calgary, provincial president of the AMA, is expected here next week and will attend the dinner meeting in the Trocadero at noon.

Jasper Place Recommended

Village of West Jasper Place took one step nearer adopting briefer name of "Jasper Place" following council meeting last night.

Mayor J. M. Stone reported the three-man council was in accord on accepting the name recommendation made last Friday by Taxpayers' Association, and said the request would be forwarded to Department of Municipal Affairs.

He expressed pleasure at reports that Edmonton district of Jasper Place, which borders the village, may relinquish the name so that the village can have sole rights.

Last night's council meeting also saw establishment of the minimum property tax of $50, forecast for the village. Affected are some 900 homes in the village which hitherto have been paying less than that amount of assessed taxes annually, the mayor stated.

Mayor Stone warned that the council intended to strictly enforce the new building bylaw and urged builders to obtain permits and file plans.

Map Committee Meeting Tonight

Tonight's general public meeting of the "Put Edmonton on the Map Committee" will be held in the Masonic Temple at 8 p.m., rather than in city council chambers, as scheduled, it was announced today by Mrs. Reta Totty, Mayor Parsons' secretary, and secretary of the committee.

Public school board meeting brought change of location.

The committee will consider a final draft of a theme for Edmonton, embodying emphasis on the city's place in the north country and in western Canada's early history.

Premier Reports Varsity Surplus

University of Alberta finished the fiscal year ending March 31, 1949, with a surplus of $196,000, according to a report tabled in the legislature by Premier E. C. Manning.

Expenditure amounted to $2,348,578; revenue was $2,444,584, and $20,423 was spent on new buildings. Salaries totalled $1,356,977.

The University received $1,170,900 in grants from the province, and $343,655 from the Dominion in the form of veterans' grants.

Air Safety Is Advanced

Air safety in Edmonton took another stride forward with the installation at the municipal airport of a $100,000 radio beam which will guide aircraft safely to the ground through blinding fog or snow.

The Instrument Landing System, as it is known, is now being installed and is expected to be in operation within four months.

Essentially, the modern air marvel throws out two beams, a directional beam which guides the plane in the field, and a glide-path beam which brings it down to the air strip.

COMPLEX

A complex instrument carried in the aircraft picks up the two beams and indicates on an instrument when the plane is flying safely down both.

Gunsight-like cross-hairs on the instrument show exactly where the plane is relative to the beams at all times—high and to the left, low and right, and so on.

As the plane flies in on the beam, it passes over marker stations which send up vertical beams letting the pilot know his position. Colored lights flash and a distinctive tone sounds in his headphones as he passes over the markers.

Already in operation at the airport is another blind landing system, GCA, standing for ground control approach. This is the military system in which the aircraft is picked up on radar and "talked down" to the ground.

Student Leaders Will Be Paid

Further recognition of the importance of student government was given by the executive committee of the board of governors of the University of Alberta when they approved the granting of honoraria to officers of the students' union, providing satisfactory academic standing is maintained and the duties of the offices are properly performed.

The president of the union is to be paid $300 annually, the vice-chairman of the university athletic board and the editor of the Gateway will receive $200 each, while $150 each will go to the treasurer of the union and the director of the Evergreen and Gold, University year book.

These awards are to be paid in two instalments, Dec. 1 and March 1 each year. Present holders of the offices will be entitled to half the annual honoraria, payable March 1 if the conditions of the award are met.

Warehouse Is Proposed

International Nickel Company of Canada is considering building a warehouse in either Edmonton or Calgary for distribution of its products in Alberta.

C. E. Macdonald, manager of the company's Canadian sales and development with headquarters at Toronto, made this announcement today.

He is in Edmonton conferring with officials of firms interested in nickel and nickel alloys.

Establishment of such a warehouse does not come under Mr. Macdonald's jurisdiction, but he understood "our distribution officials are considering such a proposal."

The company is the largest producer and refiner of nickel in the world.

The firm is interested in Alberta's oil industry only indirectly, he explained. "International Nickel is not in the manufacturing business. It supplies manufacturers with raw materials such as metals and alloys," he said.

COUNCIL QUESTIONS

Automobile Raffling On Streets Is Scored

Car raffles on downtown streets last night drew Ald. Sid Bowcott's fire at city council meeting.

He questioned where the operators get authority to park all day, and whether any accounting of their funds is required by the city.

Commissioner D. B. Menzies said there is no time limit to parking under the bylaw, provided the raffle operator deposits his cents or nickels in the meter when the time is up.

City Solicitor Tom Garside "definitely thought" the raffles constitute a business undertakings, and might be controlled from that angle.

So commissioners agreed to investigate Ald. Bowcott's questions and report back to council.

EMPLOYES OF Northern Alberta Railways last night honored Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Kavanagh upon Mr. Kavanagh's retirement as auditor. Function was held in Macdonald hotel. Mr. Kavanagh, left, received luggage set from his successor, Charles Anderson, on behalf of auditing department, and golf clubs from J. M. MacArthur, right, general manager, on behalf of company officers. Both groups made presentations to Mrs. Kavanagh. Contributing to entertainment were Amy Dudley, Gordon Garside, Evelyn Bertrand, Bert Gould, Howard Evans, Jean Keith, Violet Cumming.

Town Planning Definition

Town Planner Noel Dant's proposal that two distinct town planning bodies be set up in Edmonton tends toward what The Bulletin has been urging for months—a comprehensive definition of what town planning means and a sharp distinction between the lay and the technical aspects of it.

The previous proposal that the Town Planning Commission be continued as a mixture of lay and professional town planners never struck this newspaper as a workable proposition for the simple reason that the lay approach and the technical approach could be entirely different although each might aim at the same objective.

Mr. Dant's latest plan separates these approaches entirely. There should be a technical planning board and a planning advisory committee.

The first body, consisting of the mayor, the town planner, one commissioner, the development engineer, the city engineer, the city solicitor, health officer and building inspector will be concerned, in a broad way, with the technical aspects of town planning.

The second body, consisting of representatives of public and professional organizations will be concerned with public opinion and the general broad aims of controlled growth in Edmonton.

The technical planning board, charged with the actual administration of town planning matters, under council, will thus have, in the planning advisory committee, informative contacts with all sections of Edmonton people.

Those who have to make the technical application of the principles of town planning should be able to know at all times what the people want in the way of new development.

Over a considerable period of years, the Town Planning Commission did an excellent job in this city. But the time came when the professional touch was required, when the town planning problems of Edmonton needed the touch of experts who had been trained in what is an extensive and exact science.

There is still much for the planning advisory committee to do.

Mr. Dant has emphasized in his report the importance of public relations. The advisory committee can undertake a great deal of that.

For what will make Edmonton move today is expert knowledge plus public good will. Here is a means of securing both.

Garbage System Taken To Task

It may be very simple for city council to pass its new garbage bylaw and quip over a $5.00 charge for the new small garbage cans, but fact remains that it has been the negligent and spasmodic collection of garbage that started the use of the steel oil-drums. Hundreds of Edmonton families discovered years ago that a lightweight garbage can was wrecked in a matter of a few weeks.

There are nice galvanized cans with the tight-fitting lids that are essential if garbage is to be kept free from flies. Most householders start out with such a set. It lasts for a couple of weeks. Then they discover that in yanking off the lid to empty it, the catch is broken so the lid will not stay on. Within a couple of more weeks the lid develops a dent, sometimes the garbage wagon runs over it.

About this time it is discovered that, as a result of dropping the loaded tin against the high sides of the collection truck, it gets dented. Then the tin is dropped to the ground bending the rim at the bottom and during the second month the tin can neither be covered or even used.

After you have one or two of these $4 and $5 cans wrecked you begin looking for a steel drum. They cannot break these drums nearly as easily and so you have some place for your garbage for as long as two or three years before the drum has to be replaced.

Several Dozen

The money that is spent by Edmonton citizens to replace garbage cans that have been smashed by garbage collectors would be sufficient to buy several dozen modern garbage collection trucks. And that would be too easy a solution. That would produce some efficiency. It is much easier to pass a bylaw and stick the people with a constant succession of purchases.

To make it certain that the householder will have to buy a new can each time the garbage people smash one, there is also a provision for a fine. But if the city is going to start fining citizens for failing to have a garbage can, citizens are going to start suing the city for damages each time a can is dented or destroyed. That is one little point the city council seems to have overlooked.

No city agency has any right to damage any resident's private property and there is no reason why any can should be damaged. Thus, even though the cost is small, we may find that a good number of disgusted citizens will simply take that means of seeing to it that if this latest bit of city nonsense is to be carried out, that it is going to cost the administration something.

It has been suggested that there is no need to spend $5.00 for a garbage container. Anyone can secure a small grease-can from the nearest filling station. The cost is only 50c. That does not include a lid and, according to the bylaw, a lid is needed. But when you investigate the cost of having a lid made which will fit the can and make it water-tight, as is required, and look shut, as is also required, it would be as cheap to spend the $5.00 in the beginning. This 50c suggestion is only so much eye-wash.

Only One Can

The council, of course, is careful to give the impression that only one can will be needed for each household. Yet when the big steel barrels cannot hold the average amount of garbage which piles up between garbage collections, a small can is not going to serve.

In this case, is the city going to speed up collections sufficiently to keep the cans from overflowing into the lanes, or is this going to mean that the garbage for four cans will have to be purchased at $5.00 each?

The cold fact is that the citizens of Edmonton are going to be victimized to the tune of $5 to $15 every few months for garbage disposal which has been grossly inadequate and which is apparently going to become no better.

If that is the last word from the city, we might as well face it, but keep track of that new can when you buy it and the first time you find it dented or damaged phone the city claims agent and demand that it be repaired.

If this is not attended to immediately, get busy and sue for the cost of fixing or replacing it. One thing is certain: If enough people do that, we may at least secure a little more care in the way our garbage is handled.

Amalgamation Necessary and Overdue

Amalgamation of the Recreation Commission and the Parks Department under one administrative head will bring an end to an increasingly unsatisfactory situation.

Civic block announcements last fall about "legalizing what the Recreation Commission has been doing for years" through a new bylaw, and more recent echoes about a second proposed bylaw governing the commission's function, have not been too well received by the general public.

As Ald. Dr. Rupert Clare told council's bylaw committee last week, the overlap between Recreation Commission and Parks Department is serious. Why should one civic body have charge of maintenance and catering at Clarke Stadium, while a second has control over programs staged there?

City commissioners have complained about a double overhead in administrative costs, and in stringent financial times like these, that additional burden on the taxpayer can well be eliminated.

Jurisdictional disputes between the recreational groups and the parks administration have not been entirely lacking, even though the public may not have always occupied a ringside seat.

Certainly the open animosity between the Recreation Commission and the Federation of Community Leagues, bared periodically in public, has done the cause of organized recreation in Edmonton no good.

Executive Director John Farina has written city commissioners asking for amalgamation.

Parks Superintendent A. C. Patterson favors it.

City commissioners say it would not only increase efficiency of both bodies but save substantial overhead expense.

Let's get on with it before the 1950 estimates are considered.

Present Phenomenon of the Teen-Ager

In a way it's a bit of a shame they ever invented the teen-ager.

Time was when there were only adults and children in the world and the arrangement seemed at least as happy a one as the present three-group set-up.

In those days the male members of our society were either men or boys. If you were a boy you did what you were told and were careful not to talk out of turn.

Eventually the day came when your parents felt they could no longer underwrite your boyhood. On that day you automatically became a man—and went out to get your first job.

Boys wore stovepipe pants ending at the knee in knickers, which hooked just under the knee. Men wore long pants.

As soon as you got your first long pair—and it was a mighty important day—you became a man. After that you could stay up pretty well as late as you wanted to at night and you were privileged to use the family car. Of course you were expected to pay board.

The advantage of the system, according to people who think we have a teen-age problem nowadays, is the fact that you're either too young or too old ever to be a teen-ager as such.

As long as you were a boy you were too young to concern yourself with whatever equivalent of the spring-blade knife was available in those days, and much too bashful to worry about going to dances.

After you graduated to long pants you felt too responsible a citizen to be a problem to anyone except, possibly, to your sister who had the tough job of teaching you to dance and the even tougher one of getting you to put in an appearance on the dance floor.

A famous Canadian psychologist agrees with the folks who deplore the invention of the teen-ager—but he blames the creation of a third group is society on the adults themselves.

"The teen-agers were made to feel a group apart not children and not acceptable to the adult world," he says.

"So they made up a language and costumes of their own just to emphasize their separateness."

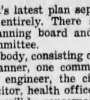
In other words, professor, perhaps too many people are wearing their pants too long, too soon.

ODDS AND ENDS By Harold L. Weir

Practical Use for Slings And Arrows of Fortune

I find it difficult to write dispassionately about the current domestic disturbances of Crooner Frank Sinatra because I never could stand the fellow.

Some years ago, the great John McCormack gave me his opinion of crooners in such vigorous and picturesque terms as to be impossible of repetition here.



WEIR

I have never found evidence to controvert John's opinion.

To put it bluntly, I never could see that Frank Sinatra could sing for sour apples.

And the spectacle of this stirring fellow being mobbed by swarms of silly schoolgirls has created waves of nausea in stronger stomachs than mine.

Perhaps all this distaste is the product of a little envy, since we are being perfectly honest about it.

But I have no envy for Frankie now because Frankie has begun the long and complicated process of becoming a bum.

Locked Him Out

The outward and visible sign of this inward and invisible change in Mr. Sinatra is given in the fact that his wife has locked him out of the house.

We have little interest, however, in the domestic squabbles which have led up to this climax except to point out that Mrs. Frankie has indicated that public adulation has made Frankie impossible to live with and that their life, lately, has been a series of rows and reconciliations.

The state of Frankie's ego seems to be completely and even delightfully pictured in her story of the latest reconciliation when she and Frankie met in a night club and made it all up.

It seems that Frankie swept her into his arms and, as they stood there bathed in a spotlight, he bifai into an adenoidal rendition of "Going Home" while the lushes at all the tables wept into their already watered beer.

All this is merely incidental to the glaring fact that Mr. Sinatra, who apparently started out as a very decent little fellow, has had his head so turned by admiration that even his doting wife can't stand him any more.

And the text of this discourse is that no man can stand to be too fortunate. The human system just won't take it.

The slings and arrows of outrageous fortune that Shakespeare was concerned about are a definite and important part of the human economy.

Absence Of Fleas

Some homespun philosopher, whose name I have forgotten, is said to have pointed out that a certain number of fleas are good for a dog because they keep him from brooding about being a dog.

Fleas are good for a dog for another reason. They are good for a dog because they keep him from imagining that he's a flea.

Frankie Sinatra didn't have enough fleas.

Life was too intoxicating.

All he had to do was utter a few abominable noises and the money poured in and hysterical little girls fell on his neck and tore his clothes off for souvenirs.

Everywhere he went, desirable females fell swooning at his feet.

As a result of all this worship, Frankie became an insufferable little punk who has now been locked out of his own house.

Nobody Immune

The purpose of this not to point the finger of scorn at Sinatra, although I mean enough to sing.

The purpose is to illustrate the way of all proud flesh.

For much better men than Sinatra have gone over the same road.

The old-time movie star Wallace Reid was one of them. Wallace was a peach of a fellow until everybody started acting as though he had just stepped down from high Olympus.

And the adulation ruined him. He became a hophead and a tramp.

The point is that those people who do not receive the normal number of kicks in the pants are headed for calamity.

The people who have it all their own way are receiving a lethal dose of good luck.

And the fellow who doesn't stop sometimes and beat his breast and cry "Mea culpa!" is in a fair way towards becoming a goose gosh.

Dirty Buses

Editor, Bulletin — I have been riding the buses of E.T.S for the past four years and have the first time, yet to see a clean bus.

For instance, the left front side seat, on the back, the metal strip on the frame is coated with dust and dirt and can not be cleaned properly, unless wiped off with a cloth.

Mr. Ferrier, kindly take notice and also check up on your inspectors in regard to this important matter.

Politeness Speed and

Editor, Bulletin — A few days ago a letter appeared in your column on which I would like to voice my humble opinion.

The working class, during hours of rush, anxious to get to or from work, as far as women are concerned, don't expect men to stand to one side while we pass, or give up a seat while they were fortunate enough to get. In fact standing to one side sometimes constitutes holding up traffic like a stalled car, and makes for frustration. Just go along with the rest of us.

Pushing and shoving is a horse of a different color — rudeness should be avoided by both sexes, and respect for age and infirmity should not be overlooked.

I certainly believe that some things considered necessary in the horse and buggy days in respect to gentlemen can be toned down these days when speed is at such a pitch and women are taking their place in the working world. We all get tired and we women aren't as selfish as you think. There are brats all over the world of course. Both sexes.

Here's to more speed both in getting on and off busses and a campaign for more general politeness.

Friendly Spirit

Lettres to the editor

Editor, Bulletin—As a follow-up on our letter to the editor of Feb. 23, we wish to quote from an article appearing in "The Reader's Digest" for March, written by George F. Kennan, a high official of the United States state department, entitled "Is War With Russia Inevitable?"

The article delves deep into the present-day complexities of the world at large, but in line with our own thoughts for the betterment of human relations throughout the nations, we quote the following:

"We should not lose ourselves in vain, glorious schemes for changing human nature all over the planet. Rather, we should learn to view ourselves with a sense of proportion and Christian humility before the enormous complexity of the world in which it has been given us to live."

In striving to formulate our idea of neighborly spirit, we feel there are many things our own people must strive to do among themselves. Firstly, one of modern man's greatest injustices, and one which we have seen practiced all too often, is that of condemnation of our fellow men who, for some reason, either self-imposed or forced by outside circumstance, finds himself on the bread line or on skid row. All too many of us, are ready, and even sadistically inclined to kick him down further, most of us, though few, will go out of our way to give him what help we can to start up the ladder again. It need not be financial assistance, but encouragement, and an understanding heart, that will help him achieve his goal. In many cases, this friendly spirit may do little real good, but if by adopting it, you can help one man or woman to attain their lost horizons, out of a thousand to whom, you have extended your hand only to have it brushed aside, then you have begun to understand the only thing that to us can better the world, that being "The Neighborly Friendship."

If we can see this spirit practiced throughout this country, then we can be sure, it can and will be adopted throughout the globe.

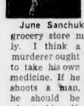
THE QUESTION:

Are you in favor of capital punishment?

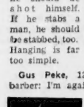
THE ANSWERS:

Doug. Chambers, assistant pressman, 11402 81 Street: It has been proven that hanging doesn't prevent murders. Imprisonment is the best way to handle it.



June Sanchuk, 12219 - 66 St., grocery store manager: Definitely. I think a murderer ought to take his own medicine. If he shoots a man, he should be shot himself. If he stabs a man, he should be stabbed, too. Hanging is far too simple.

Gus Peke, 12012 - 76 Street, barber: I'm against capital punishment. Hanging seldom, if ever, prevents a murder. A man never stops to think at the time of the crime what's going to happen if he gets caught.



I'm in favor of life imprisonment.

Olga Stefura, business student, 12219 - 66 St.: If a man commits a murder, the only thing to do is to hang him right away and make an example of him. I think they should be tougher than they are now.

James Tory, electrician, 11103-81 Avenue: You hear the priests and ministers protesting mercy killings, which are often a good thing, just because the Divine law says, "Thou shalt not kill," but they never say a word about executions. In my opinion, hanging is just legalized murder.

Print Truth

Editor, Bulletin — It's a pleasure to read letters like Eleanor Heath's and Jean McDonald's—I wonder if the editors of newspapers realize just how many of the people seek the truth in what they read. Propaganda deludes the people into wrong thinking. The blarings of some leaders, along with propaganda is enough to start a war. And then they talk of talking peace. Why not act it first. Of course, as Will Rogers said, "I only know what I read."

Isn't there something we can do, Jean and Eleanor, besides sit and wait and talk? How about some mothers going to speak with Stalin and Truman and Einstein.

Jobs For Canadaians

Editor, Bulletin — Congratulations, Irish! It's too bad there are not a few more like you who stand up for the people who belong to the country.

After all, we are the Dominion of Canada, ruled by the King of England, so why should we have to stand by and see the peasants of Europe take our jobs away from us. Truer words were never spoken or written.

In every job of importance in any part of the city, you'll find the DP firmly entrenched, while some Canadian is looking on, trying to get a job. Why don't they even things up, so everybody has an equal chance, or better still chase the DP's back to their own country? Surely there's more work there in rebuilding their country than ever before. If we had fewer DP's here we would have less unemployment and less strain on government funds.

When Memory Plays Sad, Shabby Trick

Nostalgia is a two-faced thing. You never go back to a place without having your memories badly damaged. It is rather like going back to the scene of an accident.

I came to London on a cloud of dreams, remembering the excitement and tenseness and guts of the great city during the war, remembering old friends and old adventures, remembering only the good things because the mind, dwelling in retrospect, wipes out the unpleasantries and concentrates on what was good.

So I went directly to the Unity Restaurant in Chelsea. I would, I thought, take the same small table in that tiny Greek cafe where I'd spent so many happy hours in the war. I had the scene written, like a script, in my mind. I saw Nick, the lean, dark-faced waiter rushing to welcome me back. We would talk about his Shishkabab, just as we had on my last day there.

Well, I went to the cafe. I sat at my old table. Nick came out of the kitchen, looking 20 years older than when I had last seen him, although that is only five years ago. He stood beside me to take my order and I looked him fully in the face. I ordered the Shishkabab.

Nick glanced at me curiously. The recognition flickered momentarily in his eyes and faded away. There were no jokes, none of the elaborate, heart-warming camaederie. I would have told him who I was but it wouldn't have been the same that way and it occurred to me suddenly that I recognized, too, was looking 20 years older, and if I was I didn't want it confirmed.

The Shishkabab was terrible. I had built it up in my imagination as a dish for the gods. I paid my bill and left, leaving an enormous tip, as if in final payment for something now dead.

New Address

I would go next, I thought to the old home where three of us occupied a high-domed balcony flat and where falling bombs united us into a friendship that we thought would surely never die though it, too, has somehow gone.

I walked down the old street with a coldness on me that was not the weather alone and stood before the house. It looked smaller, shabbier and drearier than I remembered. My memory had lied to me again.

So I walked up the steps and rang the bell, remembering Mrs. Edwards, our landlady, who had sat imperturable over her knitting through the very worst of it. I knew that she would be my strongest, truest link with the past.

An immense and dishevelled woman opened the door and looked at me with that open suspicion and distrust that English women have for those who invade their privacy.

"Is Mrs. Edwards in?"

"Ooo?"

"Ah, Mrs. Edwards? Lady who used to live here in 1945."

"Ow, Mrs. H'edwards!" the woman said and then, with a shrug, "She must be the lydy who died."

Bad Day

I thought of it as a las. chance. I would go to the Horse and Dolphin, the famous little pub behind the National Gallery, the great Canadian meeting place during the war. I had written articles about this pub. Charles and Grace Green, the proprietors, sent me a Christmas card each year. They had one of my columns mounted over the bar.

It was a few minutes before the first time when I arrived. Four people were at a table and as I stood at the entrance Charles, a small, shrewd-eyed man, and Grace, his white-haired wife, arose and came toward me. There were tears in their eyes. Tears! Could this be?

Charles put his arm around me. "Oh, what a day you picked to come back," he said mournfully. "The movies and we upstairs now. It is our last day here. We're cut, sacked, on our way. This very day."

A moving man brushed by us. He was carrying Tobey, the drinking cat, who would ride in the van. There would be no more beers for Tobey from Canadians.

We sat down with the other couple, the new managers. The man was a big fellow who looked like a butcher. He and his wife were clearly impatient at the Green's un-British show of sentiment, anxious to find out the schedule for the deliveries and one hundred other details. I bought a light ale and took a seat near the door and when I could get away decently I did. The van was just pulling out and the cat inside it was crying.

"Oh, well," I thought, "at least Tobey will have her memories."

Accused Doctor Treated Dying Woman Well

MANCHESTER, N.H., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Reginald F. Borroto said today his dying wife was treated like a mother by Dr. Hermann N. Sander.

The 41-year-old Dr. Sander is on trial on a first-degree murder charge — accused of ending the woman's cancer-tortured life with an air injection into her veins.

Defence counsel Louis E. Wyman then cross-examined Elizabeth Rose, 24, the nurse who has testified she saw Dr. Sander inject air into Mrs. Borroto's veins.

Under cross-examination by Wyman, Miss Rose insisted she "couldn't remember" telling other nurses that Mrs. Borroto was already dead when Dr. Sander reached her bedside.

Union-Inspired Letters Flood Ottawa MPs

OTTAWA, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Officials of the House of Commons post office today reported that members of Parliament are being flooded with letters urging support in a campaign to abolish the means test for old-age pensions.

The letters followed a national newspaper advertising campaign by the Canadian Congress of Labor. The advertisements carried protest forms which could be clipped out, put in an envelope and mailed to members of parliament.

Youth Dies In Dental Office Chair

OTTAWA, Feb. 28—(BUP) — A 21-year-old Ottawa youth died in a dentist's chair yesterday.

An autopsy was slated for this afternoon to determine whether an inquest should be held.

Dr. Percy Nesbitt said he put the youth, Lee Holt, under nitrous oxide at 8:45 a.m. to extract 12 teeth. After 10 teeth had been pulled the youth changed color and died almost immediately.

An Ottawa fire department emergency squad used six tanks of oxygen in a futile effort to revive Holt.

Chiang Issues Bombing Warning

By Spencer Moosa

TAIPEI, Formosa, Feb. 28.—(AP)—In the wake of new attacks on two United States merchantmen, Nationalist China warned today that all ships trading with the Chinese Communists are subject to air assault.

The Pioneer Dale of the United States Lines and the Flying Clipper of the Isbrandtsen Line were bombed and strafed by unidentified planes yesterday off Tsingtao in Communist north China. The bombs missed. But both ships were peppered by machine-gun fire. One sailor was injured.

Meanwhile, the Chinese Nationalist defence ministry said today 3,800 pro-Nationalists were massacred by the Communists in the Shanghai area.

The reported massacre occurred in the Pootung industrial area across the Whangpoo river from Shanghai, the ministry said. There was no way for outsiders to check the report.

RESUMES PRESIDENCY

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek announced today he would resume the presidency of Nationalist China tomorrow.

The Chinese leader said he also would assume the post of commander-in-chief of all Nationalist forces.

He "retired" from both jobs in January of last year, just before the fall of Nanking.

Vice-president Litsung-Jen became acting president. Li is recuperating in a New York hospital from a surgical operation.

Witness To Be Guarded

QUEBEC, Feb. 28.—(CP)—The court today granted a request that Genereux Ruest, crippled Quebec watchmaker described by the crown as an "important" witness in the murder trial of J. Albert Guay, be kept under "surveillance."

As the fourth day of Guay's trial opened, crown prosecutor Noel Dorion indicated that the little paralytic will be called later in the case in which the crown seeks to prove that Guay murdered his wife by having a time bomb placed aboard a plane. The 28-year-old Mrs. Guay and 22 others died when the plane crashed at nearby Sault au Cochon Sept. 9.

Ruest testified at Guay's preliminary hearing last fall that he had rigged up an alarm-clock detonating device for the 42-pound jeweler.

Mine Union Will Change

TRAIL, B.C., Feb. 28.—(CP)—C. H. Millard, national director of the United Steel Workers of America (CIO-CCL), said yesterday the steelworkers will replace the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union "in all the locals in Canada" within a year.

Mr. Millard, who is also vice-president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, said the struggle for power here between the steelworkers and communist unions was "part of the cold war that is being waged all over the world."

"Communist infiltration is reaching its final stages," he declared. "This is not an emotional struggle but a real struggle for power."

The mine-mill union, he said, was interested only in "key spots like Trail, or Kimberley."

Airman Safe After Ordeal In Northland

A story of amazing courage by a northern pilot was told today by an official of University hospital.

Undergoing treatment at the hospital is Morris Grant, Whitehorse garage man, whose light plane crash-landed Wednesday near the British Columbia-Yukon border.

Dressed only in light sreet clothes, he waited without a fire for four days to be rescued, the doctor stated.

On arrival in University hospital today, he was found to be suffering very severely frostbitten feet and a possible fractured leg. Otherwise his injuries are not serious and his condition is "fairly good."

'REMARKABLE SURVIVAL'

Grant will be in hospital "a long long time," the doctor stated.

"He is a remarkable fellow to have survived as he did," he commented.

The pilot was flown to Edmonton by Canadian Pacific airlines.

His Tiger Moth plane cracked up Wednesday while on a flight from Taku Arm, B.C., to Whitehorse, 96 miles north.

After building a fire and resting by his plane, he attempted to walk to safety, the doctor stated today. After walking for nine hours in waist-deep snow he was forced to give up the attempt and remain without a fire to await rescue.

Para-rescue men jumped to his aid Sunday and brought him down the 5,000-foot mountainside.

Execution Bill Is Insufficient To Stop Hanging

Exclusive to The Bulletin

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 — (BUP) — Solicitor-general Hughes Lapointe told parliament it was not the government's intention to suspend capital punishment while a bill was before parliament to abolish it.

Ross Tatcher (CCF—Moose Jaw) proposed the bill last week. He asked yesterday whether the government would suspend capital punishment, particularly in the case of a double hanging scheduled for this morning in Vancouver, until the bill had been either accepted or rejected by parliament.

Lapointe said there had been similar legislation before parliament in past years. The government took the position it must apply the law as it stood, until it was changed.

Equipment for the project which arrived here today included four aircraft, sound trucks, and cameras. Two Chicago stations (WGN and WENR) were backing the scheme with MGM Motion Pictures, Inc.

EAC on Road to PA After Taking Series

Scenes From EAC's Triumph in Junior Puck Series

SITTING on ice, Wetaskiwin goalie Red McPhederon blocks drive by EAC forwards. Also in picture are Wetaskiwin forward Howie Green (6), Wetaskiwin centre Emile Jurista (7) and EAC winger Don Haworth (11).

BATTERED and bruised, goalie McPhederon still manages to grin after losing 8-2 to EAC in deciding game of best-of-three junior hockey series.

PACKING BAGS, victorious EAC players Don Perry, left, and Bill McNally whoop it up after winning Northern Alberta Junior league title. Pair played in great style last night and packed bags hurriedly to catch train for Prince Albert.

Wetaskiwin Beaten 8-2 In Rubber Contest

By Ernie Fedoruk

Last night EAC juniors boarded a CNR train for Saskatchewan. Their destination — Prince Albert — home or the Mintos, northern Saskatchewan Junior Hockey league champions.

Clubmen earned the trip by downing Wetaskiwin 8-2 at the Gardens last night to win the third and deciding game of the Northern Alberta Junior Hockey league final.

About 1,500 fans took in the contest.

EAC scored two goals in each of the first two periods, then wound up with a four-goal burst in the finale. Wetaskiwin's markers were tallied in the second and third frames.

EAC's won the first game in the best-of-three series 3-1 Friday night. The next evening in Wetaskiwin, with goalie Red McPhederon in the starring role, Calgary Clubmen handled the Clubmen 4-1 to force a third and deciding game.

HAWORTH STARTED IT

Last night, until the 7:47 mark, it looked as though McPhederon would again stop EAC. Up to that time he made several sparkling stops.

Winger Don Haworth, finally tipped in Duke Edmundson's pass from just inside the blue-line to give EAC the lead. That goal was the first time EAC had opened scoring during the series.

Defenceman Gord Stogryn hit the open side of the net at the 15:41 mark to make it 2-0 for the Clubmen. Stogryn simply picked up Bill McNally's rebound off the boards and shot it into the net before McPhederon was able to get in position.

Big Bill Geary missed the net around the eight minute mark after being set up by Edmundson but seconds later Edmundson fed him another pass and Geary made no mistake.

Defenceman Don Perry, who played an outstanding game for the victors, made it 4-0 when his slapshot caught the upper left hand corner midway through the second session.

Wetaskiwin got into the scoring late in the second. Doug Campbell caught Don Morley's pass inside the EAC blueline, raced down the left boards and fooled Bob Arniel with a hard, waist-high shot.

EAC caught fire in the third, scoring four successive markers to raise the count to 8-1 before the bespectacled Morley tallied Wetaskiwin's final counter.

Perry, Del St. John, Jim Johnson and McNally were the EAC standouts in the last frame. McNally was one of the standouts for Morey Rimstad's aggregation.

McPhederon received a cut on the nose during a fight in front of the net late in the third stanza, and the game was delayed for five minutes when he was treated for the cut. The fighters, McNally and Wetaskiwin defenceman Dick Christy, were given majors.

EAC now meets the Mintos at Prince Albert in a best-of-seven Northern Saskatchewan-Alberta playoff. First game will be played tomorrow, second on Friday night, and the third, if necessary, on Saturday.

The teams will play on Saturday if EAC win the first two, or any first two games are split. The series will return to Edmonton on March 6.

Time Out Sports

By DICK BEDDOES

SOME EARLY PREDICTIONS

Inspired by a trip to the vegetable store for oranges and a fast five minutes under the sun lamp, Blowhard Beddoes completed his personal spring training today by picking Boston Red Sox and Brooklyn Dodgers to win the 1950 baseball pennant races.

All this was occasioned by a report in the newspapers that fungo bats and fly balls will be all the rage from Arizona to Florida, tomorrow when 16 major league teams begin shaking loose in spring training.

Having thus put the Beddoes seal of approval on the Bosox and the Dodgers, we can move on to other important news.

It is in the nature of an exclusive that I can tell all you diamond fans that there will not be an all-Detroit world series this fall. Nor will there be an all-Cleveland world series.

There will not be an all-Washington world series, either. There will not be an all-Cincinnati world series. And there definitely will not be an all-Pittsburgh world series.

It also is highly improbable that there will be an all-Chicago world series, an all-New York world series or an all-St. Louis world series.

But there is some possibility of an all-Boston or an all-Philadelphia classic come October.

And before I prophesy that there won't be a world series whatsoever, I hasten to get my fangs out of this microphone and onto topics closer to home.

HOT OFF THE GRID

Some pertinent facts and figures about Lindy Berry, Texas Christian University football ace who is expected to play quarterback with Edmonton Eskimos this season: He was the unanimous choice for all-south western quarter last fall and was among the top three in passing in college play in the U.S.A. He completed 106 out of 220 passes for a total gain of 1703 yards through the air last season.

In four years with TCU, Berry rolled up 6,861 yards—or almost four miles—in forward passes. He is co-captain of the club and will graduate with a degree in business administration this spring.

LADIES CURLING

Robertson Wins Dentyne Event

Granite's Robertson rink, skipped by Mrs. G. Woytkiw, yesterday won top honors in the Dentyne event for city rinks in the northern Alberta ladies curling association bonspiel.

They downed Mrs. F. Law's quartet, also of the Granite, 15-12 in the 12-end final match of the spiel.

Mrs. Woytkiw, third Mrs. Bert Robertson, second Mrs. B. Jones and lead Mrs. A. Moiyneaux, took an early lead with a six ender. The Law foursome curled well in an attempt to overcome that long lead but their effort was futile.

Others on Mrs. Law's rink were: third, Mrs. E. Perry; second, Mrs. C. Rolf; and lead Mrs. Bert Little.

Mrs. W. D. Robson, Edmonton Curling Club, took top honors in the points competition held at the Edmonton club during the spiel and copped the Journal trophy.

Others in order of finish in points play were, Leduc's Mrs. F. Flood, Mrs. W. McIvor, Mrs. A. T. Williamson, Alta. Ave., Mrs. R. S. Walkinshaw, Thistle and Granite's Mrs. D. Dunlop.

Following is the end-by-end results of the Dentyne final:

LEARN-TO-SKI WINNER DISQUALIFIED

Recreation Commission's "Learn to Ski" campaign director, Jack Reilly, announced last night that Keith Hamley, winner of the final races held Saturday afternoon, had been disqualified.

Reilly stated that Hamley had admitted competing in the city open meet at White Mud recently, and therefore was a competent skier and not in the same class as the other youngsters in the "Learn to Ski" classes.

First place now goes to Colin Courleigh who had previously been second, and runner up now is Ken Kaye who was third prior to Hamley's disqualification.

Don Carle moves up to third spot.

EZZ CHARLES FIGHTS BESHORE MARCH 29

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 28—(CP)—The postponed heavyweight fight between the National Boxing Association champion, Ezzard Charles, and Freddie Beahore probably will be Wednesday, March 29, promotor Dewey Michaels said yesterday.

It had been re-scheduled for Tuesday, April 5.

Michaels said another promtor, Tom Lippes, had agreed by telephone from Florida to relinquish the March 29 date, which Lippes had reserved for a show featuring Joey De John.

The little fight originally was to have been tonight. It was called off last Friday when Jake Mintz, manager of Charles, announced the champion had injured a rib in training.

Liscombe 19 Points Away From Record

PROVIDENCE, R. I. Feb. 28 — (AP) — Carl Liscombe, 35-year-old veteran of 16 years of professional hockey, needs 19 points in the 11 games remaining to Providence Reds this season to establish an all-time professional hockey scoring record, it became apparent last night, through closer check of the records.

When Liscombe, a native of Perth, Ont., scored a goal and provided one assist in Sunday night's victory over Hershey Bears at the auditorium here, it was believed that he had tied the record of Clint Smith, now coach of St. Paul Saints of the United States league, at an overall total of 675.

But advice from George Edmond, sports editor of the St. Paul Pioneer Press revealed that Smith's total is 660. The Assiniboia, Sask., product had 673 points at the conclusion of last season and, according to Edmond has scored 20 this season, on six goals and 14 assists.

Liscombe started the season with a total of 637, and the two points he made Sunday night gave him 38 more. Originally it was announced by the Providence hockey management that Smith's record was 675, with the St. Paul manager being credited with only two points this season.

AT BANFF

Penalize Slalom Competitors

BANFF, Alta., Feb. 28.—(BUP)—Officials of the North American Skiing championships yesterday announced details of the penalties called in Sunday's slalom event.

Christian Pravda, of Austria, was given two five-second penalties, which dropped him from 4th place in the unofficial standings to 16th.

Egon Schopf, of Austria, was given one five-second penalty, dropping from unofficial 3rd place to 8th.

Bernard Perren, of Switzerland, was awarded one five-second penalty, which moved him from unofficial 6th place to 11th.

Frank Atkinson, of Vancouver, had one five-second penalty called against him, which did not change his standing in 34th place.

Sergio Navarette, of Chile, also had one five-second penalty, which still left him in 37th place.

All penalties were called because competitors were judged to have straddled gate poles.

Officials explained the delay in announcing the official results and details of the penalties was because of staff difficulties.

Wetaskiwin Beaten 8-2 In Rubber Contest

By Ernie Fedoruk

Last night EAC juniors boarded a CNR train for Saskatchewan. Their destination — Prince Albert — home or the Mintos, northern Saskatchewan Junior Hockey league champions.

Clubmen earned the trip by downing Wetaskiwin 8-2 at the Gardens last night to win the third and deciding game of the Northern Alberta Junior Hockey league final.

About 1,500 fans took in the contest.

EAC scored two goals in each of the first two periods, then wound up with a four-goal burst in the finale. Wetaskiwin's markers were tallied in the second and third frames.

EAC's won the first game in the best-of-three series 3-1 Friday night. The next evening in Wetaskiwin, with goalie Red McPhederon in the starring role, Calgary Clubmen handled the Clubmen 4-1 to force a third and deciding game.

HAWORTH STARTED IT

Last night, until the 7:47 mark, it looked as though McPhederon would again stop EAC. Up to that time he made several sparkling stops.

Winger Don Haworth, finally tipped in Duke Edmundson's pass from just inside the blue-line to give EAC the lead. That goal was the first time EAC had opened scoring during the series.

Defenceman Gord Stogryn hit the open side of the net at the 15:41 mark to make it 2-0 for the Clubmen. Stogryn simply picked up Bill McNally's rebound off the boards and shot it into the net before McPhederon was able to get in position.

Big Bill Geary missed the net around the eight minute mark after being set up by Edmundson but seconds later Edmundson fed him another pass and Geary made no mistake.

Defenceman Don Perry, who played an outstanding game for the victors, made it 4-0 when his slapshot caught the upper left hand corner midway through the second session.

Wetaskiwin got into the scoring late in the second. Doug Campbell caught Don Morley's pass inside the EAC blueline, raced down the left boards and fooled Bob Arniel with a hard, waist-high shot.

EAC caught fire in the third, scoring four successive markers to raise the count to 8-1 before the bespectacled Morley tallied Wetaskiwin's final counter.

Perry, Del St. John, Jim Johnson and McNally were the EAC standouts in the last frame. McNally was one of the standouts for Morey Rimstad's aggregation.

McPhederon received a cut on the nose during a fight in front of the net late in the third stanza, and the game was delayed for five minutes when he was treated for the cut. The fighters, McNally and Wetaskiwin defenceman Dick Christy, were given majors.

EAC now meets the Mintos at Prince Albert in a best-of-seven Northern Saskatchewan-Alberta playoff. First game will be played tomorrow, second on Friday night, and the third, if necessary, on Saturday.

The teams will play on Saturday if EAC win the first two, or any first two games are split. The series will return to Edmonton on March 6.

EAC JUVENILES CONTINUE VICTORY MARCH

EAC rolled into a one-game lead in the Juvenile Hockey league final last night, trimming Maple Leaf B's 6-2. Winners of the best-of-three series will move into further provincial playdowns against the Calgary winners.

Stu Hall led the EAC with two goals while Russ Kowalchuk, George Watt, Frank Joyal and Noel Foster scored the others. Bill Stein and Carrier tallied the Maple Leaf markers.s

For the EAC's it was just another victory in a skein which they've been working on since the season commenced. Only blight on their record—if you can call it a blight—was their recent 4-4 tie with South Side.

The People Write . . .

Flyer Followers: "Would you kindly publish if Dougie Anderson has broken the record for assists. If not what is the record and who holds it?

Answer: Ken (Red) Hunter, now with Saskatoon Quakers, holds the record. While with Calgary Stampeders, season 1945-46, the carrot-top helped out on 55 goals.

Attention Miss Kay Griff, 13013 - 65 street: "Why address your remarks to this corner re Johnny Wynnyk and whether it's good or bad to live in North Edmonton?

The reference to fighter Wynnyk WAS NOT carried in the Bulletin. You read it somewhere else, or your informant did.

"As for me being too busy to be interested in "people who have to fight to exist" I would say that when one in this craft loses interest in people — any people — he might as well throw in the towel."

Disgusted: "Why don't you wake up? After all even a newspaperman is supposed to do his snoozing away from the job, not on it."

Answer: "On this job, anytime I get a chance to do a little sleeping I'm not for asking any questions as to the place and the time."

Attention:

Nelli Scott, P. O. Box 9221, Johannesburg, South Africa: It's great to hear from you again, to be reminded that you think now and then of your trip to Edmonton a couple of years back as Bobby Locke's manager.

A lot of people around here remember you, too, Nelli, and rather pleasantly, at that. You must come this way again.

Mrs. John Bonnyman Akins: "Notice where you ask in the paper what became of Art Bonnyman who played for the Soops (ed. note: Edmonton Superiors, a power in senior hockey circles 20 years ago).

"Art has a shop on the South Side. He's well known and liked by many Edmontonians. He is a real hockey fan, as would be expected, and keeps right up on all the games.

"My brother Lloyd lives at Yellowknife and has played a lot of hockey up there for different teams."

Comment: It's good to know that Art Bonnyman, once a member of the famed Jim Graham——Bob Crossland—Art Bonnyman line, is doing okay in a business way, to say nothing of maintaining his yen for hockey, even if only as a spectator.

Attention Ken Nelson, Ohaton, Alberta: Re your questions on "sports reporting" for use in vocational guidance:

Will attempt to get around to dealing with the rather lengthy epistle shortly. However, I know right now that I'll have considerable difficulty dealing with you on about "importance to society" of sports reporters and sportswriters.

Many times I've heard it said that we constitute a "menace" to our fellow-men, although I think this is laying it on a little thick.

Personally I don't think we rate, in this respect, alongside the atom or H bombs.

Joe Hennessey, 3 star sport promotor, booking agency, 43 Dundas street W., London, Ont.: "I am interested in booking the Joe Louis Punchers fastball team into your part of the country.

"Punchers team is made up entirely of Negro boys who are top-notch ball players. I would appreciate you passing this information on to anyone interested in booking them this season."

Comment: There it is—any of you fastball promotors who want of 3 star's Punchers in Kingsway or other fastball parks.

Attention "Scotty" McNeill, Lloydminster:

Sorry to have been of no help on your request of some time back. But try us again next year. We might do better for you.

Al Walsh, Winnipeg: "Have been transferred to this and of Cain and Abel by my company.

"Took in the Winnipeg Black Hawks - Winnipeg Canadiens junior game last night. Canadiens won 6-5. It was colder than a polar bear's nose in the Amphitheatre, with the few spectators wrapped in blankets as if they were viewing operation "Sweetbriar."

"This shambles known as the Amphitheatre makes Edmonton Gardens look like the Taj Mahal.

"I follow the fortunes of my beloved Flyers via the Edmonton Bulletin and your own (ed. note: word deleted) column. When the weather warms up I intend to take a few early jaunts to Polo Park.

"Will brief you on how the local bang-tails are preparing for the coming season."

Comment: Sports enthusiast Walsh certainly has that alleged hockey rink in the Manitoba capital pegged pretty right.

Not only is it akin to a deep freeze, but it's never really been the same since the night two years ago that Flyers Harvey (Pug) Young and Johnny Black, "won" the hearts of Winnipeg fandom, and especially the ticker of Tony Allan, sports editor, Winnipeg Tribune.

As for the bang-tails, hope Mr. Walsh doesn't wire any information unless on a sure thing.

Quakers Eliminate Caps By Trouncing Calgary

CALGARY, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Saskatoon Quakers clinched a spot in the Western Canada Hockey league playoffs last night by defeating Calgary Stampeders 8-4 in a league contest before 5,000 fans. The Saskatoon victory blasted Regina Caps' hopes of a playoff spot.

The win boosted Saskatoon into a second-place tie with Calgary, six points ahead of the last-place Regina Capitals. The league's four teams each have two games left in the regular schedule — too few for Regina to overcome their deficit.

Alex Kuzma and Red Hunter each tallied a brace of goals for Saskatoon with Cy Rouse, Billy Johnson, Cy Thomas and Tommy Burlington picking up singletons.

Archie Scott, Ingve Grani, Johnny Milliard and Mitch Pechet were Calgary's marksmen.

IDENTICAL SCORE

The hot Saskatoon aggregation —who beat the league-leading Edmonton Flyers by the same 8-4 score Saturday—led 2-1 at the end of the first period, added four counters to Calgary's one goal in the second period and then equalled Stamps' two third period markers.

Saskatoon's first string of Thomas, Burlington and Chuck McCullough threw around more rubber than any line on the ice. McCullough set up plays for two goals and was robbed by goalie Russ Dertiell on four spectacular rushes.

Calgary got the game's first goal at 4:44 of the first period when Scott tipped in Grant's 15-foot shot at goalie Johnny Sofiak.

Late in the period Rouse took Mike Kaboluk past and drove in a low shot for the tying goal. At 18:35 Johnson flipped home Kuzma's corner pass-out for Quakers' 2-1 lead.

Grant, veteran Calgary left-winger, evened the count early in the second period on a backhand shot after cutting in sharply from the left boards.

It was the 200th goal for 30-year-old Grant in a Stampeder uniform and the crowd gave the shifty winger a tremendous ovation.

QUAKERS IN CHARGE

From here in, however, the game belonged to Saskatoon. Kuzma rapped in Hunter's pass on a face-off at 8:31 for the first of four Quaker second period goals. Thomas' speed defenceman Julian Sawchuk for a blind to unload his bullet drive and Dertiell, caught unawares, was forced to duck. Hunter made the score 5-2 by converting McCullough's rebound and Burlington added another for Saskatoon at 17:27 by back-handing McCullough's passout.

In the third period Calgary defencemen tipped two goals into Sofiak's own net during scrambles. Jack Taggart deflected Hunter's shot and Hugh Coflin gave similar treatment to Kuzma's delivery at 19:21.

Milliard scored the first of Stamps' last-period markers by tipping in at the goalmouth Sawchuk's long drive through a maze of players. Pechet got Calgary's final goal at 13:16 when he stole the rubber from a Quaker defenceman and waltzed in from the blueline.

Only three minor penalties were called, two to Saskatoon. The Quakers tallied their fifth goal while short-handed.

Cage Series Likely On

It's almost certain that University of Alberta Golden Bears, northern Alberta senior basketball champions, will leave for Calgary Thursday noon to play Calgary Mount Royal college in the provincial playdowns.

This was learned today from Prof. Maury Van Vliet, Bears' coach, whose objection to certain features of the playing floor at Calgary, as well as other aspects of the proposed series, threatened for a time its cancellation.

"They now have similar backboards at either end of their floor and I'm quite certain question of the guarantee will be ironed out in time for us to leave Thursday," Prof. Van Vliet said this morning.

EUROPEANS SAY

Canucks Lack Ski Background

By John Aluis

BANFF, Alta., Feb. 28—(BUP)—Europeans were the North American men's and women's Alpine combined champions today and said Canadians and Americans lacked the skiing experience and know-how to give them stiffer competition.

Zeno Colo, 30-year-old Italian woodcutter, was men's combined winner; Austrian Dagmar Rom, 21, pretty, blonde University of Innsbruck co-ed, was women's combined champion.

Colo made a clean sweep of the men's events. He zoomed down a hazardous 1¼ mile downhill course Saturday in 2:03.3 minutes. He covered the slalom, half as long but raced on wet snow through 55 gates in the midst of a snowstorm, twice in two minutes. 10.6 seconds.

Little more than a week ago Colo had captured the world downhill and giant slalom titles at Aspen, Colo., and Miss Rom the International Ski Federation ladies slalom and giant slalom.

Miss Rom won the Ladies North American slalom on Mount Norquay when she covered the half-mile course in 56.4 seconds twice for an elapsed time of 1:52.8.

Colo's coach, Otto Menardi, reflected the Italian's views on Canadian and American skiers when he said "they lacked experience, they must still learn more to ski with their heads. Now, they have good style and lots of speed."

Miss Rom said she had been observing the North Americans and had come to the same conclusion: "The Canadians and Americans," she said, "don't have the long skiing background we Europeans have. They need more experience. We've had it, handed down to us for 50 years."

ST. CLEMENT, Norfolk, England —(CP) — Teams of farm-workers have started a Sunday Football Cup competition.

Musical entertainment and pictures shown by Rennie Harley of Ducks Unlimited will wind up the evening. The number of tickets available will be limited and President Fergus Owens suggests that members pick up their tickets for their wives and guests from members of the executive as early as possible.

PREPARED to fly home to San Francisco after signing professional football contract with Washington Redskins, three time little All-America quarterback Eddie LeBaron checks bag at Washington airport. Edmonton Eskimos displayed some interest in LeBaron after seeing him play in Shrine Bowl game on New Year's Day. However, since that time Eskimos are reported to be more interested in LeBaron's College of Pacific team-mate, John Rhode.

ON EVE OF SPRING TRAINING

Ted Williams Predicts Hot Pennant Race

NEW YORK, Feb. 28—(UP)—Leaving for a few days of pre-training fishing in Florida, Ted Williams predicted yesterday that the 1950 pennant races would be "as hot as the last two" because higher salaries and the players' pension fund has eliminated the "soft touch."

"The worst pitcher and the worst club in baseball are in there on the last day of the season trying to knock your brains out," the American League's most valuable player insisted.

The Bosox batting star credited this will to win to two factors: the pension fund which stimulates youngsters to stay up in the majors and the higher salaries "which have everybody hustling so they won't lose them."

"I think we have a wonderful chance to win the pennant," the lithe, lean slugger said. "But we'll have to get off faster, that's all, than we have in the past two years."

Winding up an off-season in which he fished in Florida, hunted in Minnesota, judged a duck-calling championship in Arkansas and demonstrated his fly-casting prowess in the Boston and New York sportsmen's shows, Williams dropped his head into his sinewy fingers as he thought over those last two seasons.

In 1948 the Bosox lost the American League crown in a playoff with Cleveland and last season dropped the title to the Yankees on the last day of the season.

"We can't come much closer, but this year it's going to be another rough race all the way," he insisted. "This time there are going to be five clubs in it—the Red Sox, the Yankees, Cleveland, Detroit and Philadelphia. And the other three are going to be tough because they want those big league salaries and want to stay eligible for the pension fund."

A fit 195 pounds—just about playing weight—after an arduous winter, Williams expects another rough year for the hitters.

"Every club has good pitching," explained the most feared batter in baseball. "I'm not complaining, understand, but it gets harder and harder to hit up around that .350 mark. I guess it can be attributed to better pitching, more night ball, and resultant irregular habits. But understand, I'm not complaining and I'm not saying that conditions are bad."

The kid, who has been criticized so often that now he is careful about each statement, didn't do too badly last year. He missed his fifth batting championship by a fraction as he hit .345; led in runs, doubles and homers, with 43, and tied for the runs-batted-in crown.

Actually a serious, personable man who insists that he always gives his best, Ted still is sensitive about the uproar which followed his designation as last year's most valuable player. Consider his overall record and you almost have to side with him, even if you are a frustrated Yankee fan.

Payments on Wheat Are Called Bribery

Borrowing by Board a Deliberate Political Move, Commons Is Told

OTTAWA, Feb. 28.—(CP)—A CCF farm member last night accused the government of playing politics with the wheat board.

Percy Wright (CCF, Melfort), a farmer at Tisdale, Sask., said that before last spring's federal election the government forced the wheat board to borrow $23,000,000 from the banks in order to pay western farmers a 20-cent-a-bushel participation payment on the five-year-wheat pool.

MANY INTERRUPTIONS

Speaking in the commons throne-speech debate, Mr. Wright ran into a barrage of interruptions from Agriculture Minister Gardiner and other Liberal members.

Mr. Wright said the action bore out charges made last spring that the government was "bribing" the farmers.

Mr. Gardiner interposed at this point, asking Mr. Wright if he were not aware that the farmers asked for the partticipation payments.

Mr. Wright admitted they had but not for 20 cents a bushel.

Mr. Gardiner said that just a week ago Mr. Wright had asked about further participation payments.

"Yes," said Mr. Wright, "but that was before I saw the wheat board report."

"DELIBERATE POLITICS"

He contended the government should have given a 10-cent payment last year instead of borrowing money for the larger payment. In the long run the farmers would have to pay the interest on the loans so they would not gain as much as if the payments had been spaced properly.

He was certain the wheat board didn't make the 20-cent payment of its own volition. It must have been paid by order-in-council.

"It was a deliberate move by the government for political purposes," he said.

Last Letter Lists Needs

ROME, Feb. 28—(Reuters)—The last letter of Mussolini's mistress, Clara Petacci, lamenting that all was "crumbling mercilessly," then listing an elaborate wardrobe necessary for her proposed flight to Switzerland, was published yesterday by the Rome newspaper Momento Sera.

She asked for: a machine-gun and pistol, Mussolini's photograph, three packages of aspirin and seven dressing gowns.

The letter was dated April 18, 1945, one week before she was shot with Mussolini. They were strung up by the heels in Milan after their capture a few miles from the Swiss frontier.

The call that wakes a nation's heart to action

Somewhere in Canada, a tiny victim of disaster clings tightly to the comforting arms of a Red Cross worker. In a Red Cross Outpost Hospital in the wilderness, a desperately injured trapper is fighting for life. In a modest room in a great city, the wife of a hospitalized war veteran prays for the joyous moment when she'll see him again in the homelike Red Cross Veterans' Lodge.

They are depending on you to hear the call of the Canadian Red Cross . . . and answer generously, from your heart. $5,000,000 is needed this year to ease the pain, to lighten the sorrow, to heal the ills and wounds of the less fortunate. Your gift is needed to extend the life-saving Red Cross Free Blood Transfusion Service across the Dominion . . . to maintain the Outpost Hospitals . . . to support the Veterans' Services . . . to widen the activities of the Red Cross Swimming and Water Safety Programmes, of the First Aid, Home-Maker and Nursing Services, of Women's Work Activities, and many other Red Cross services.

You have a part to play in the work of the Red Cross . . . and only you can play it. Give from your heart—give all you can!

This year the need is urgent for $5,000,000
to carry out the work you expect your Red Cross to do

Brave New World

Some backward thoughts on looking forward to the year 2,000 with contestants in the Knights of Pythias speaking contest on the topic, "50 Years Hence:"

City council meeting held Feb. 25, 2,000, approves bylaw compelling Edmonton citizens to wear felt-soled shoes on moving sidewalks . . . City Commissioner John Hodgson, working on a 99-year extension since 1954, predicts many residents will evade law by going barefoot. Ramshackle buildings along Detwiler Miracle Mile being torn down to make way for new 21-lane freeway connecting city with interplanetary rocket port at Namao. Civic Auditorium committee holds first meeting in year 2,000 and reports progress on plans for downtown auditorium. . . In the meantime city music lovers protest holding of concert for visiting tenor from Venus in Stock Sales Pavilion . . .

Long-standing mystery of so-called canals on Mars cleared up with arrival of first visitors from that planet. . . Chuckled the Martians: "Shucks, we've just been digging up the streets, same as you do here in Edmonton."

Rossdale Community League protests having city atomic pile so close to residential area. Mothers complain their youngsters are getting hot footsies . . . Elegant Elsie the fourth is slaying male customers who patronize the Atomat Fission Chips.

Cash and Carry

Edmonton's big building boom is moving so fast that bank tellers and cashiers are almost getting "plastered" at their work.

What we really mean is that over at the classy new Bank of Toronto building now under construction, workmen carrying bricks and plaster are virtually scraping elbows with bank employes lugging stacks of currency from cage to cage.

Banks are actually "crashing" all over Edmonton these days. We mean that bigger and better bank buildings are replacing the old familiar landmarks.

In addition to the Bank of Toronto, there are extensive improvements being made to the main branch of Bank of Montreal. Imperial Bank main branch is soon to come down to make way for a fine new building.

Wonder what became of trucker Jack White?

Movie short of Edmonton blind bowlers in action is now showing at Varscona Theatre. Shots were made by National Film Board some weeks ago.

Long Term Solution

Ken Samis, the coal merchant, is highly pleased that the city is going to give residents three years to buy the small-sized garbage cans.

"On the instalment plan a guy ought to be able to make it," says Ken.

Bill Robinson, the Entwistle store-keeper, wonders how the cats will like the smaller cans.

One of these days a manufacturer is going to start a revolution by announcing a cleaner that contains 'soap.'

A supersonic goodnight to all and especially to people who are cheerful enough to talk about things that will happen in the year 2,000 A. D.

South Africa Veterans Just 'Kids' at Dinner

The Battle of Paardeburg was fought some 50 years ago during the South African War. But to many survivors of the conflict who gathered last night at the Memorial Hall, it seemed like yesterday.

Although age had crept up on the men who displayed colors and medals they had won during that war, W. (Bill) Ireland, president of the South African Vets, described his group as a "bunch of kids." He wasn't far wrong because the vets, many of whom have participated in two of the ballooning century's three wars, were plenty spry as they blended their voices in song.

R. G. Reid, former premier of Alberta, speaker, gave a brief history of the South African Campaign and paid tribute to the British Empire which he described as truly great.

Present at the head table with Reid and Ireland, were Frank Harvey, president of the Army and Navy Club; Alfred Peart, Canadian Corps Association; Air Commodore H. M. Cannellan, RCAF; Reg. Jennings, Chief of the Edmonton Police Department; Archie Baptie, Kingsway; Bill Gardner, Red Chevrons; and J. A. Davies, South Side Legion Branch 130.

Entertainment was provided by Bill Ness, Bill Lynch, Jimmy Dent, Red Watson, Benny Blanchini and Jack Jones.

Chamber Still Opposes Crest

City crest controversy stirred again last night, months after city council settled on a design, and a week after announcement that engravings have arrived and the new crest is now being used on official documents.

City council filed a letter from Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, recalling its opposition to the present form of the crest, and "strongly urging" council to submit the design to the College of Heralds in England.

Water Speech Induces MP To Drink In House

OTTAWA, Feb. 28. — (CP) — "Water is one of the most important commodities in Canada," said Austin Dewar, Liberal member for Qu'Appelle, Sask.

"As a matter of fact," he told the House last night, "I'm going to have a drink of water."

Mr. Dewar, who comes from Indian Head, Sask., dwelt long on Canada's water problem, indicating its importance in all parts of the country.

Throughout Mr. Dewar's speech the word "water" appeared so often that one member said:

"You're full of water."

"My friend says I'm full of water," replied Mr. Dewar. "I'd hate to say what he's full of."

Radio School Work Continues

Classes by radio will still be conducted for Alberta children, even when the government's radio station CKUA is sold.

Premier E. C. Manning, in reply to a question from CCF leader Elmer E. Roper, said yesterday in the legislature that the government plans to dispose of the station because while it is being financed by taxpayers in the entire province, its audience is located only in the Edmonton area.

He said school broadcasts now carried by CKUA could be released on purchased time on a network of Alberta stations.

The first book explaining dreams was written more than 2,000 years ago.

North Areas Real 'Eden' Of Country

Canada's Northwest Territories are opening up and will someday be a real "Eden of the north."

This prediction was made yesterday by Kenneth W. Conibear, author, trader and Rhodes scholar, at a luncheon of Edmonton Canadian Club.

Conibear, whose home is at Fort Smith, NWT, knows the northland first hand. Born at Fort Smith, where his father was a river boat engineer, he came to Edmonton to study at Victoria high school and University of Alberta. He then won a Rhodes scholarship in 1931. Later studies won him a degree from Oxford University.

TRADE KEY

The Mackenzie River is the key to northern trade, he said. At first one paddle steamer was enough to handle the 100 tons of supplies needed by the area. That was in 1914.

Today, volume of traffic on the river has risen to 100,000 tons, said Mr. Conibear. In order to handle this tremendous freight increase, means of river transportation have had to be improved.

"And in future, more and better boats carrying heavier loads will have to be developed," he said.

Gradually, the Northwest Territories are becoming more populated. Oil deposits are being discovered and the ground cultivated, he declared. "Civilization is spreading up there fast. It's the land of the future."

Trained Men For Farming

Farming is more and more taking its place alongside industries as a business and the training of farm operators should be geared to meet this growing tendency, Roy C. Marler, president of Alberta Federation of Agriculture, said in an address here last night.

Mr. Marler was one of two guest speakers who addressed meeting of the Agricultural Institute of Canada, Edmonton branch. Second speaker was A. G. Kirstine, superintendent United Grain Growers' feed plant.

BUSINESS TRAINING NEED

The meeting, held in Hut B University Campus, was under chairmanship of Dr. A. G. McCalla, head of the department of plant science, University of Alberta.

The greater responsibilities of farming were making it necessary for greater technical training, said Mr. Marler. To fit the prospective farmer with adequate training, emphasis should be placed on greater business training and on a good grasp of political economy and commerce.

Mr. Kirstine's address dealt with the young agriculturist entering the commercial branches allied to farming.

Basic need of young agriculturists in commecial agricultural work are qualities and characteristics "which education can develop but does not necessarily supply," said Mr. Kirstine.

Honesty, initiative, capacity for responsibility and personality were other qualities that claimed a large place in the success of any young man entering the commercial agricultural field.

House Jockeys British Voting

British election returns show the people of Great Britain "are, beyond a shadow of a doubt, suffering from frustration and do not know which way to turn," H. D. Jorgenson, (SC-Pembina) told the legislature yesterday.

If the Labor government had had something to offer it would have been returned by an overwhelming majority, he said.

"But the Labor party received two million more votes," CCF Leader Elmer E. Roper shouted from the other side of the House.

"It's the seats that count," retorted Mr. Jorgenson. The Labor party, he added, had "bettered one class only at the expense of another."

Agriculture in normal times provides roughly 40 per cent of Canada's total export trade.

Record Vote For Beverly

Just about the biggest turnout of voters in the 36-year history of the town of Beverly lined up at the polling station yesterday to elect two councillors and two school trustees.

Successful candidates to fill the two vacancies on the seven-man village council were Metro Workun, a carpenter, and S. H. Payne, federal civil servant. It was a return to the council seat he held last term for Payne.

PROGRESS SINCE 1948

Re-elected to the school board were Richard Chernesky and Harold Horne.

Payne and Workun tallied 128 and 98 votes respectively. Unsuccessful candidates for council seats were retiring councillor, Robert Simpson, 78; Andrew Plashka, 34, and James W. Richardson 91.

SCHOOL BOARD

In the school board election Chernesky had 134 votes and Horne 154. Unsuccessful candidate, James Lester Collins, rang up 120.

It was Beverly's first council elections since the "specials" in 1948 when a full council came into office to take over local government from the province's provincial administrator.

Town secretary Julian Summers was returning officer.

Installation meeting will be March 6.

He pointed out that the town's population had nearly doubled since the present council took over in 1948. Property assessment value has increased from $240,000 to $520,000 in 1949.

On council with Mayor Hairsine and the new councillors are A. Holoiday, Walter Tachuk, James Miles and K. C. Dunford.

With Chernesky and Horne on the school board are Mrs. K. C. Dunford, Mrs. E. Evans and Oscar Setzer.

Two Division Setup For Town Planning

Amalgamation Is Deferred

Proposed amalgamation of Parks Department and Recreation Commission was referred last night by city council back to its bylaws committee to give commission members opportunity to make representations.

The action came on the heels of the bylaws committee's full discussion of the measure last Thursday. It recommended to council was that the two bodies be amalgamated under one department head.

Ald. Dr. Rupert Clare, who at Thursday's meeting said the Recreation Commission was divided in its opinion on amalgamation, last night said it had been the intention to have commission members appear before the committee. But this had not been done, and asked that the opportunity be presented.

Ald. Harold Tanner said he had received numerous phone calls from citizens disturbed at possible slashes in recreation program.

Biggest factor in commissioners' recommendation of amalgamation, Ald. Fred Mitchell said, was the opportunity to budget for both functions in one item. He suggested further discussion should centre around the proposed new bylaw, which John Farina, executive director of the commission, told council had been dropped by the commission.

Revue Shows Stage Of Age

If anyone doubted the Canadian stage is coming of age he had only to see opening night of "There Goes Yesterday" last night at the Strand.

There was bound to be something to strike his fancy in this swiftly-paced romp through the highlights of behavior of the first half of this century.

Sketches, satires and song and dance routines of this all-Canadian revue ran the gamut from superb through fair to pretty poor. Much of it, thankfully, was excellent entertainment.

Canadian theatre-goers are fortunate in having a splendid team of comedians as John Pratt, of wartime Navy show fame, and Murray Matheson, British import from the London stage.

Without doubt the high-spot of the show is John Pratt in his own "You'll Get Used to It." This picture of the utterly forlorn, regulation-ridden and completely bewildered able seaman has lots of its attraction for a post-war audience.

For an actor to have such complete control of his audience is not just rare. He was almost hypnotic.

"There Goes Yesterday," sponsored by Edmonton Junior Chamber of Commerce, will continue all this week at the Strand with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.—(W.I.)

Finnish Reds Are Jailed

HELSINKI, Finland, Feb. 28.—A Finnish court yesterday sentenced 80 participants in August's Communist-inspired riots, in the north lumber town of Kemi, to prison terms up to 16 months at hard labor.

Two workers were killed during the riots, inspired by Red elements to disorganize the country. The riots engulfed all Finland.

The Kemi district court acquitted 30 defendants and exempted five youths from punishment.

Home Beauties

Beautification of home grounds should be planned as carefully as an architect plans the house itself, P. S. McCalla, supervisor of horticulture for the province of Alberta, told members of the Delton Home and School Association at their February meeting held last night at the Delton School. Mr. McCalla also gave tips on gardening. Mrs. J. King presided.

Final will be held in Grand Rapids, Mich., in August.

Last year Gliener finished second in the finals, winning a $500 scholarship that he has not yet taken up.

Last year Gliener said he felt that man would decide against destroying his world and institute a world government with popular authority to assure the prosperity that modern science will make so abundant in the next 50 years.

Judges in last night's eliminations were: Dr. F. M. Salter of University of Alberta English department; N. H. Silverman, Edmonton barrister, and Jack DeLong, columnist of The Bulletin.

Chancellor Commander Ernie Constable of Edmonton Aviation Squadron No. 3, Knights of Pythias, was chairman with F. W. McGowan of the lodge speaking committee in charge of contest rules.

Bursaries Help Health Studies

Announcement has been made at Ottawa by Hon. Paul Martin, minister of national health and welfare, that 11 persons from Alberta and Saskatchewan have received bursaries from the federal government for the purpose of attending special courses in public health.

Latest group of recipients of federal bursaries for this purpose include Mrs. Meta C. Moffatt, Fairview; John P. Matwichuk, Lamont; A. Josephine Montenth, Lethbridge; Helen Deagle, Consort; Florence E. Morrison, Beaverlodge, and E. Dorie Sundberg, Wainwright. They will attend a six-week course at the University of Alberta.

Technical End Divided From Advisory Section

Basic changes to a "new order" in town planning for Edmonton were approved last night by city council. At Town Planner Noel Dant's request it agreed to split the technical end of planning from the citizens' advisory sphere.

It also approved extensive amendments to the provincial Town Planning Act, suggested by Professor Harold Spence-Sales, McGill University planning expert, after consultation with Alberta government authorities. These reportedly will be passed at the current session of the legislature, and give effect to the new deal in planning, not only for Edmonton but for all cities in the province and for the metropolitan district planning program now being organized.

VETO POWER GIVEN

Council agreed to give Mr. Dant power to refuse any building development, regardless of zoning bylaw provisions, if it conflicts with the general city plan he now is developing. An appeal to city council is provided.

Council also approved restrictions limiting each land-use zone to the use specified, subject both to Mr. Dant's final decision and to an appeal to council from his decision.

Mr. Dant said he wants power to correct "incongruous" developments such as that on 82 avenue east of 99 street, where five or six land uses are permitted in one block.

Acting Mayor Athelstan Bisset said no reflection should be cast on present or past members of Town Planning Commission by the decision to set up both a technical planning board and an advisory planning committee.

The first will consist of city officials and will look after actual technical implementation of planning, while the latter will be purely advisory, consisting of representatives of various public bodies.

"We fully appreciate the services of the Town Planning Commission," he said, "but the action comes because it is apparent to us that we must move on to a new order."

Council passed a formal motion of appreciation.

Ald. Dick Hanna, a member of the commission for a year, said it had been stymied in initiating any plans for city development because of lack of qualified technical membership. "I hope the committee will continue to serve in an advisory capacity."

Farmers Invited To Visit Varsity

Agricultural Club of the Faculty of Agriculture at the University of Alberta is planning a visitors' day on March 11 to replace the annual field day.

Films of agricultural interest will be shown continuously throughout the afternoon.

At the university farm the most modern poultry equipment will be demonstrated. The various barns and livestock on the farm may also be inspected.

Students from schools of agriculture and senior high schools for a radius of 100 miles around Edmonton, representatives of commercial firms, the department of agriculture and farmers are invited.

U.S. Ups Defences

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP)—The defence department last night announced that the United States Air Force is strengthening its Super-Fortress groups with additional bombers and tanker planes. The tankers are similar to those which enabled a B-50 bomber to fly around the world without stopping.

Pensions Topic Is Postponed

Threatening debate on a resolution urging abolition of the means test for old age pensions, and lowering of pensionable age to 65 years, prompted city council last night to toss the question to its finance committee for consideration.

"It might be a good time to add our weight to the resolution," said Ald. Harold Tanner.

"Yes, if we know where we want to throw our weight," shot back Acting Mayor Athelstan Bisset.

Matter was raised in a letter from Windsor city council.

BYLAW FINALLY APPROVED

Garbage Pickup Vehicles Said Antique Collection

City council last night approved the new garbage collection bylaw after brief, snappy debate.

"The city now will be able to live up to its health bylaws," said Ald. Fred Mitchell.

"Edmonton has the greatest collection of antiquated garbage collection vehicles to be found anywhere," said Ald. Dick Hanna.

"I hope in the three years allowed for complete replacement of the present oil drum garbage cans, we can get collection equipment that will cope with big cans."

Commissioner D. B. Menzies said the new measure allows a householder free collection of one cubic yard of garbage per week, equal to 6% cans of the maximum size permitted. The ordinary house will never need that much, he said.

Cans will be limited to 18 inches diameter, 36 inches in height, and four cubic feet in volume. Progressive replacement is allowed until Jan. 1, 1953.

Mr. Menzies said commissioners have checked all over Canada in search of garbage collection equipment which lifts the can from ground to truck, but have found none.

Mr. Menzies said that horses and wagons will continue to be used in outlying districts, where lanes are not gravelled and will not be for some time. In wet weather they are the only equipment which can be used there.

Half-Baked Buns Home Time-Saver

By Bea Thrifty

Time-saver in the field of household arts is wrapped up in a package containing partially cooked dinner-rolls.

Your corner grocer or your baker may give you a package of these half-baked buns . . . and all you have to do is brown them in the oven for about seven minutes.

Righ now the dinner roll is available here . . . but soon the same gem will be ours for asking about hard rolls, sweet rolls, Danish pastries and hot-cross buns.

* * *

This way friend homebaker can have hot rolls for breakfast in the same length of time it takes to fry bacon and eggs . . . no mixing . . . no kneading . . . no waiting to "rise". And nothing can replace the aroma of freshly-baked bread in the kitchen, can it?

* * *

The brown 'n serve rolls keep well too. They stay fresh up to five days on the grocer's shelf, two weeks in the refrigerator.

You have a whirl at them too.

* * *

There is much ado about this washing-no-rinsing soap detergent business. And what exactly do you think about the situation?

I'm of the school that thinks clothes should be rinsed often and well before hanging out to dry.

But the little men who've come out the blue with this newie are as confident as confident can be.

* * *

This method was heralded as labor saving!

It was time saving!

It was water saving!

More important, it left clothes clean, fresh smelling, and healthfully germ free. With repeated washings, the colors would continue to be bright and the materials would have a soft, natural feel.

* * *

The importance in getting foreign matter out of a fabric, it was explained is in the washing, not the rinsing of clothes. The Tide suds lift the dirt out of the clothes. Whiteness and color brightness are in direct proportion to good washing and the amount of water removed through wringing.

Rinsing does not contribute to the killing of germs. This is accomplished in the washing drying and ironing process as by heat, detergents, and fresh air.

* * *

Additional important savings are the dollar-and-cents cost of heating the rinse water. Where water-shortage is a factor, washing-no-rinsing can make a vital contribution. It is estimated that a family of four can save 40 gallons of water a week with this new method.

BRIDGE

Cross-Ruff Needs Expert Timing

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY

The other day I found a hand which had been played by Col. Richard H. Skinner of Alexandria, Va., who was president of the American Contract Bridge League in 1944.

There is an old saying that many a man is walking the streets of London, because he failed to lead trump. Skinner proved that queen in dummy. The king of hearts was cashed and Skinner discarded his three of diamonds. Next he led the ace of hearts. East ruffed with the three of spades and Skinner over-ruffed with the five-spot.

The three of clubs was led and ruffed in dummy with the deuce of spades. The three of hearts came back and when East refused to ruff, declarer won the trick with the six of spades. He now gave up a diamond trick, throwing East in the lead. East decided to try to stop some of the cross-ruffing, so he led the king of spades, which declarer won with the ace.

Now the nine of clubs was trumped in dummy with the ten of spades. East, still hoping to make two spade tricks, refused to over-ruff. The six of hearts was led from dummy and now East was helpless. If he trumped with the queen, it would establish declarer's jack of spades. If he trumped with the nine-spot, as he did, declarer would over-ruff with the jack, concede the last trick to East, and make five-odd, for top score on the board.

WHY GROW OLD

Posture-Improving Exercise Given Here

By Josephine Lowman

You have probably heard about wall climbing or scaling, but I wonder if you know about wall sliding?

Today's exercise involves a form of wall sliding and is fine for posture.

The one posture fault which is most prevalent and one which detracts more from the attractiveness of a woman's figure than almost any other, is incorrect alignment of the pelvis.

This is really a figure fault as well as a fault in posture because it throws the hips out in the back and is accompanied by a protruding abdomen.

This not only ruins silhouette but throws the body off balance and places strains which lead to fatigue. The followig exercise is helpful:

Stand with your back against the wall. Your feet should be from 8 to 12 inches away from the wall, depending on your height. Let your arms hang at your sides, fingertips touching the wall as you slide. Press your hips and the small of your back against the wall as you bend your knees and slide down the wall.

Keep your back erect. Straighten the knees and move up the wall, keeping THE MIDDLE BACK PRESSED HARD against the wall.

When you first begin you will probably not be able to bend your knees all the way down but go as far down the wall as you can. After a while you will go the whole way.

Also try to remember when walking or standing to pull your hips under and your abdomen in. Be sure Not to snap your knees back. This throws the pelvis out of line. Keep the knees relaxed. If you have been walking incorrectly you may even feel as though you are walking with bent knees when you relax them.

If you would like to have my leaflet, No. 57, "Grace and Charm," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman, in care of this newspaper.

A MODEL demonstrates the way Josephine Lowman suggests you slide to perfect posture.

Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, '50

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Constant effort very important now, plus your usual initiative and drive. Good returns promised for daily tasks, urgent and useful business well conducted. Industry can gain.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—You in trades, professions, all work essential to everyday life, can show benefits if you apply yourselves efficiently and steadily. Sound investments and money transactions offer gains.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Plan sufficiently long to gather your thoughts, decide the things you want done first, then go ahead. Your particular work, activities you understand, will yield benefits.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Seek right information about what you do; a few minutes spent acquainting self with facts will bring surer returns, save time later. Good day for personal gains.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Encouraging planetary influences now, but each must do his or her share in order to make the whole proposition, project and community a more complete success.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—If you carefully avoid strain and fretting, this can be a most fruitful day for healthful endeavors. Artists, authors, journalists, decorators, dressmakers, milliners among many favored.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—You have similar tendencies now to Taurus. Note advice to them. Scan carefully day's demands, go about tasks unworried but efficiently and you will earn benefits as well as leisure hours.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—A warning NOT to over-enthuse or promise more than you can reasonably handle. Otherwise day should be gainful if you go quietly, systematically about it. Good fun okayed, too.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Expanding your business better to economical needs—changing, adding methods of materials to improve quality or increase the sales—favored now. Don't go beyond sane means, however.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Should be amenable period for study, scientific research, working with and for government and community interests. Bettering your own position and security highly favored.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Just the sort of day to use to catch up with those little tasks that are really important, also to tackle the more difficult problems—which you can handle if patient and attentive.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Decisiveness and promptness are two big aids to help you make this a really productive period. Don't hesitate about new jobs, if in order; you are capable. Fine day generally.

You Born Today—Clever, artistic and soundly capable. May be too timid, indecisive at times. Aim to overcome this, else you may be able to show your true worth. Have faith in God's help and in the gifts with which he has endowed you. Develop your talents; study always to keep abreast of the times and to improve your status and capacity to help others. Never permit inertia to hold; urge yourself to avoid in useful activity. You are fairminded, idealistic, generous, evil things—keep that way. Birthdate: Famous Saint-Gaudens, American sculptor; Wm. Dean Howells, American novelist; Dinah Shore, singer.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS

Reader Offers Warning To Triangle-Case Girls

DEAR MISS DIX: In the Eternal Triangle, it isn't the wife who suffers the most and who goes through the tortures of hell.

It is the Other Woman. I know from experience. The man will promise no matter what happens to always love and protect you, but when the time comes when he is tired of you he will betray you.

He will take everything you have to give, and leave you with a broken home and a broken heart. Dorothy Dix, isn't there some word you can send out that will save some girl from the wreck I have made of my life?

THE OTHER WOMAN

ANSWER: It seems to me that I spend half my time in broadcasting warnings through this column to girls about the danger they run in having affairs with married men. But still each girl believes her case to be different from all others, and that for once a liaison is going to last and be enduring.

They still fall for the old line about the wife who does not understand, about the unhappy home, about the heart starving for affection.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR HER?

Of course, it is easy enough for a girl to fall in love with a married man. But when she feels herself slipping and her emotions beginning to get beyond her control she does well to sit down and try to figure out what she will get out of giving her heart and her life to him.

Does she believe that she can build her house of happiness out of the wreck of another woman's happiness? If not, what then?

Does she want to spend her life on the outskirts of the life of the man she loves? Does she think that she can find any happiness in knowing that another woman bears the name of the man she loves, that she occupies the place in society his position gives her, that the wife spends the money that she helps her husband earn?

Can any vanity or any sophistry blind her to the fact that the man who has not been faithful to one woman is not likely to be faithful to another?

A man may not love his wife. He may not be happy with her. But that does not mean he is going to get a divorce. Often a philanderer clings to his wife because she is a protection against the Other Woman.

Often a man does not want to give up his children. Often a wife has money or powerful family connections that are useful to the man. And it never does a man's business standing any good to get a divorce.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

In-Law Relationship Difficult for Parents

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

The in-law relationship ought to be the easiest of all problems to solve if the persons involved would only think so.

There are some complaints that are heard over and over and one of these is that of the grandparent who won't respect the opinions of the parents and co-operate with her. This grandparent picks up the baby, though the mother perfers she would not. She can't hear the baby cry, even a little, and dandles it so constantly that shortly the baby cannot lie and play by itself but wants the constant attention of some adult.

All of these situations are aggravated when the young parents must live with or near the older ones but, they need not be. The first point of adjustment is for the grandparent to change her attitudes toward the young mother. She must make herself feel that if she is old enough to get married and start a family the kindest way to treat her is as if she were grown up.

No matter what the grandparent thinks she must have faith her daughter or daughter-in-law must learn by doing, not by being told. If she makes some mistakes they won't be disastrous ones, if she is a loving, conscientious mother, even if her ways differ from those of her mother or mother-in-law.

If the young mother is actually mistreating her child then some outside authority should be asked to step in. Grandmothers aren't always wrong, but I an not writing on cases of actual abuse of children but of treatment which is not wrong but only different and unfamiliar to the grandparent.

Every young parent has difficulty getting her own bearings as a parent. She is self-conscious about her behavior because she is used to taking advice from her mother and she is hesitant about flouting it.

The perceptive grandmother will understand this and will not override the young parent's wishes implying, "What do you know about babies?" There would never be any war between the two generations except that one of the other is stubborn and domineering.

Our leaflet No. 84 "The Problem of Relatives," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Here's An Answer To Man-Hunting Spinster's Problem

NEW YORK — (CP) — Now, girls, be may not be just the man of your dreams, but if you want to be married you can find a husband. Just stop looking for a "superior" one.

That is the word of Dr. Margaret Mead, associate curator of ethnology at the American Museum of Natural History, who said in a lecture here that "any woman who wants to get married today can find a husband unless she is deaf, dumb and blind."

And if he isn't quite her ideal, well "how many men marry a woman who is infinitely beautiful, infinitely educated and has the right kind of relatives?"

Getting married is just as easy for a woman as for a man, said Dr. Mead. But women create crises in their lives by wanting husbands who are superior to them, whereas men are more willing to marry the girl they can get.

If women continue this insistence on superiority in their husband, she added, they will "create a group of men who get awfully nervous if their wives are any good."

When you hang a coat or suit out on the line, use two coat hangers hooks together in opposite directions to keep the garment from blowing off the line.

Steel Stockings Next On List For Leg Appeal

VANCOUVER — (CP) — Women can have their legs sheathed in steel instead of nylon if they wish.

Hosiery can be made from finely-spun wire, says Lucien Bineau of Montreal, executive of one of Canada's leading nylon stocking companies.

But Mr. Bineau, here on a recent business trip, told an interviewer he thought women were hardly prepared to enclose their legs in steel stockings. He had seen a sample, experimental stocking made of wire which was "flexible and pliable."

The nylon executive said he was confident that his product has replaced silk in stocking manufacture to a large extent.

"And there is no truth in the rumor that nylon could be made that would last forever," he said. "It just isn't so."

"Anyway, 98 per cent of women's hosiery is not worn out. They are ruined by contact with a rough object."

Pompeii Was Buried For Many Centuries

In the shadow of Mount Vesuvius, in Italy, lies Pompeii, one of the most marvelous buried cities in the world.

When Mount Vesuvius erupted in 79AD, the whole area was buried beneath the lava and ashes, and was hidden for nearly two thousand years. Pompeii is like a sleeping city which is coming to life in the twentieth century.

The dead past seems very real and near when entering the gate of the wonderful city. Along the silent streets the ruts made by chariot wheels cut deep into the paving stones and on both sides of the road are deserted houses with rooms arranged in ancient Roman style. They show how walls were decorated, people lived and food was prepared thousands of years ago.

ANCIENT ROOMS

Everything is just as it had been left in the first century. There were loaves of bread, baskets of fruit, flowers, jewels of the women, household pots and pans, and even children's toys, each telling how the Pompeians lived. Wall paintings show pictures of old Pompeians feasting and working and going about their daily tasks.

Although most of the inhabitants of the city were able to escape, some stayed behind to collect their belongings, or lost their way in the thick dusts and were killed. Their bodies were found in doorways or with their heads wrapped in cloaks, as if suffocated by the volcanic fumes.

FAMOUS MEN DIED

Among those who died at this time was Pliny, the famous Roman writer, and his nephew, Pliny the Younger, who left a vivid description of what happened on that terrible summer day when Pompeii and its sister city, Herculaneum, were destroyed.

Pliny and his mother escaped with the crowds, going out into the streets where chariots swayed back and forth while thundering down the streets toward the sea.

ROMAN ADMIRAL

Pliny the Elder, who was an admiral of the Roman fleet, was away at Museum when the destruction began, but he immediately ordered a boat to be launched and sailed homeward across the bay. He landed at Stabiæ, and failing to reach Pompeii, stayed at the town with a friend. However, the danger spread, and when the two men tried to escape amid the destruction clouds of falling ashes, Pliny was overcome and choked by the poisonous fumes.

After the destruction of Pompeii, fugitives returned to search the city for lost relatives or belongings, but no attempt was made to restore the city and after a time it was forgotten. It was not until late in the eighteenth century that regular excavations were started, but since that time the work has gone on steadily until now a large part of the town has been uncovered. By the time the work is finished, historians hope to have one of the most beautiful ancient cities in the world.

Sincerely,

Joan Walker

Uncle Wiggily's Bedtime Story

Teenie, the littlest turtle in Big Tree Land at the North Pole was very happy because he had won a prize. The other, larger turtles, who had also won prizes because of the pictures painted on their backs, crawled away with their turtle friends to celebrate.

"I want to thank you and Bunty for painting the picture on my shell so that I could win a prize," said Teenie, "I thank you both from the bottom of my shell."

"That's all right," said Bunty kindly. "We were glad to paint the picture on your shell, Teenie. Of course, Buster and I know it wasn't a very good picture, for we are only just learning to paint. The Lady Mouse Teacher in Hollow Tree School, back home, taught Buster and me how to make pictures with colored chalk on the blackboards."

"You and Buster made a very nice picture on Teenie's back," said Uncle Wiggily to Bunty. "And, now that Painted Turtle Day is over, I am anxious to know more about Golden Day."

"So am I," said Bunty. "Let's go ask King Alby and Queen Owlie."

"Before you go please show me the picture on my back," replied Teenie, "I would dearly love to see the picture that won the little prize. Show me the picture on my back!"

Buster and Bunty didn't know just how to answer Teenie. It was true. The little turtle could no more look at the picture on his shell than you can look at the top of your own head. Buster shook his big, long ears and said:

"I don't believe you can ever see that picture, Teenie."

"Oh, yes he can!" suddenly bleated Uncle Butter the goat. "Just take Teenie to Uncle Wiggily's sky auto. There are looking glasses in our auto sedan and, with the help of looking glasses, Teenie can look at the picture on his back."

"Oh, that will be wonderful!" said the littlest turtle.

In his sky auto, which could roll along the ground or fly through the clouds, Uncle Wiggily arranged some looking glasses so that Teenie could see the picture on his back. The picture that Buster and Bunty had painted was one of a green lake, of blue sky with white clouds and trees with their Autumn colors of gold, red, purple and brown.

"Oh, my picture is very beautiful," said Teenie as he crawled away. "I can never thank you enough, Buster and Bunty." Then Teenie shared his prize of snails and crab-flavored sea weed with his friends and they were all very happy.

Uncle Wiggily, Buster and Bunty were hopping away from the sky auto in the parking lot to go and ask the king and queen of Big Tree Land about Golden Day when Bunty saw a butterfly fluttering toward them. The butterfly was sad and seemed to be crying.

"Who are you and what's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily kindly.

"My name is Flitter," answered the butterfly, "and I am sad because I have lost the goldfrom my wings and I cannot take part in Golden Day. Oh, dear!"

U.K. Dollar Store Adequate, MP Says

Suggests Britain Convert Large Holdings of Canadian Securities

By Ronald A. Nickerson
Exclusive to The Bulletin

OTTAWA, Feb. 28.—(BUP)—Louis-Philippe Picard, Liberal member for Bellechasse, Que., suggested last night the British government buy up all Canadian securities held by Britons and turn them over to Canada.

Picard said similar plans already had been carried out by the United States and Argentina. He said such a repatriation of Canadian securities was the only logical step toward solving Britain's dollar shortage.

Opposition MP's had a stock cry of "let us help Britain get the dollars," he said.

"To this, I answer that Great Britain has a potential fund of some $1,642,000,000 to purchase Canadian goods which, distributed over a period of years, would ensure Britain of her necessary supplies and Canada of her necessary market.

"The British government knows where these securities are," he said. "They have been registered, and they might actually buy them at a price equivalent to their market value."

BRITAIN BARGAIN HARD

He suggested loss of the Canadian markets in Britain might not be due only to Britain's shortage of dollars as claimed repeatedly by government sources on both sides of the Atlantic.

He said the question of prices was a dominant factor.

"It has been customary for Britain in time of peace to be a tough bargainer, to forget the interests of the commonwealth at large and to think only of herself," he said. "The British act like real businessmen and drive a hard bargain, while we (in Canada) are sentimentalists."

Picard recalled that during the war Canada sold wheat to Britain for less than could have been obtained elsewhere on the world's markets. It had been a sacrifice Canadian farmers made in the hope "of gaining the gratitude of Britain and keeping those markets after the war."

"The difference between Britain and Canada is that Britain has the practical sense of doing business in a businesslike way, of fighting wars either to ensure her supremacy or her survival," Picard said.

"On the other hand, we are sentimentalists, who fought wars in the past more because of the attachment of some of our citizens for their former mother country than because of any actual threat to our country."

ONLY ASKS FOR LOYALTY

Canada had been in the habit of "not daring to ask for what others get as a matter of right, such as the repatriation of our securities."

"Business is not transacted that way in Britain. She buys where she thinks she gets the better bargain, be it with yesterday's enemy or tomorrow's potential adversary. She speaks of imperial loyalty only when she expects it from others.

"The moment has come to try to impress upon her the advisability of reciprocating in time of peace. We have failed to arouse her gratitude; let us now try to convince her that it is in her own best interests to cooperate."

According to Picard, the breakdown of British holdings in this country was:

Canadian bonds held in Britain, $105,000,000.

Railways and utilities, $315,000,000.

Corporations, $97,000,000.

Common stock holdings, $675,000,000 mostly in railway issues.

Direct British investments in Canadian branches, subsidiaries and other Canadian companies controlled in Britain, $357,000,000.

Picard's solution was that once the securities had been handed to the Bank of Canada by the British government the bank could handle their "orderly liquidation on the Canadian market."

Hostess Has Narrow Brush

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP)—A Pan American airways stewardess was blown part way through a 15-inch window of a pressurized-cabin airliner early today when the window blew out during a ferry flight from New York to Miami.

Stewardess Josephine Pou was pulled to safety by Purser Michael Marr as the suction created by the loss of the window partly pulled her through the window. She was asleep in the seat next to the window when the incident occurred.

The window gave way while the Lockheed Constellation was flying at 20,000 feet along the coast of South Carolina. The Clipper carried 22 passengers — all Pan American employes.

A commercial airline steward was blown out of a plane over New York state Feb. 11 and fell 8,000 feet to his death. The same day, an Eastern Airline steward dangled 2,500 feet over Tampa Bay when the door of the airliner blew open. He grabbed the steps and hung head down for eight minutes while pilot made emergency landing.

The Great Wall of China, which was first erected about 200 BC, is over 1,400 miles long.

Sask. MP Asks His Province Be Gift to Alberta, Manitoba

OTTAWA, Feb. 28.—(CP)—The best way to solve Saskatchewan's problems is to eliminate the province entirely, a Saskatchewan farmer told Commons yesterday.

Irvin Studer (L—Maple Creek) suggested that the province be carved down the middle from north to south. Half of it could be given to Manitoba, the other half to Alberta.

GET LOWER TAXES

This would give the Manitoba side the advantages of lower taxes, power development "and other things residents of that part of Saskatchewan have had to do without."

It would mean that residents of the western half of the province would get the benefit of a $7.00 pension with no means test.

He referred to supplementary payments which provinces make in addition to the basic $40-a-month old age pension. The $40 is made up of a $30 federal grant on condition that the province provides the other $10. Alberta provides an additional $7.50 a month with no means test.

CCF MEANS TEST

Mr. Studer criticized the record of Saskatchewan's CCF government.

He said that the CCF party, while coming out strongly in favor of abolition of the means test for old-age pensioners, had a provincial government which supplemented federal pensions by only $2.50, and employed a means test of its own.

He urged that instead of acquiring land, as the Saskatchewan government was doing, the province should be giving it away.

Perhaps the best thing would be to carve up the province and give the halves to Manitoba and Alberta. Alberta, with its resources in soil, oil and minerals, would be able to develop her half of Saskatchewan.

SASK. TAXES HIGH

"The only way oil can be developed in Saskatchewan now," Mr. Studer said, "is to dig a tunnel under the Alberta lines."

The CCF, he added, had stated publicly that it would not rest until capitalism was eradicated. Hence it was impossible for the CCF government of the province to entice capital to enter the province.

WHEAT FLOOR URGED AT 1949 PRICE LEVEL

OTTAWA, Feb. 28—(BUP)—A permanent floor price for wheat at the 1949 level for the next few years was suggested today in the Commons by Robert Fair (SC-Battle River).

Fair noted that from 1946 to 1948, Canadian farmers lost over $508,000,000 by accepting lower prices for their wheat than U.S. farmers.

"I suggest a floor price for wheat at the 1949 level," he said, "for at least the next few years. Industry gets a near subsidy through tariffs. The least farmers, who work longer hours, could get would be some floor prices."

Strict Truck Control Is Urged by CPR

OTTAWA, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Tighter regulation of "for hire" trucking was advocated by a Canadian Pacific Railway witness yesterday before the Royal Commission on Transportation.

The commission was told by C. E. Jefferson, CPR traffic vice-president, that any regulation of "for hire" trucks would be "a step in the right direction."

RAILS LOSE TO TRUCKS

"For hire" trucks consist of those that operate as public vehicles or carry goods under contract with shippers, as distinct from trucks operated by shippers themselves.

He was questioned on the point by Frank M. Covert, commission counsel, in reference to earlier CPR evidence that the railways were losing substantial amounts of revenue to truck competition.

Mr. Jefferson suggested the trucks should be regulated to the same extent as the railways are, and that the regulation should be enforced.

That might lead to more private trucking, he said, but it would be of substantial help to the railways. He added it would be no more injurious to the "for hire" trucks than their operations now harm the railways.

Girls Averse To Shorts

WINNIPEG, Feb. 28—(CP)—The scanty attire worn by beauty queen contestants may be changed for evening dresses at the Miss Winnipeg Beauty Contest March 31.

The Winnipeg Free Press says today that executives of several of the city's 42 community clubs—which sponsor the event—object to the scanty attire worn by contestants.

The story quotes one executive as saying "the girls, many of whom are only 16 or 17 years of age, are very much averse to appearing before 5,000 people and facing the whistling and wolf-calls which generally result at a function of this type.

"Those in favor of the change from scanty attire (shorts) to evening gowns for the contestants said that many girls won't enter the contest if they have to face embarrassment."

The MUDLARK

By Theodore Bonnet

Synopsis: Wheeler, the Mudlark, a seven-year-old East End orphan found no idea when he slipped past the Windsor Castle guards and fell down an open coal chute that he would see Queen Victoria and Disraeli in the Queen's dining room, start a neurosis among the guests, finally be adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Brown to sit upon the throne. But his dream was soon smashed by the arrival of Mr. Naseby, the Sergeant Footman and McHatten a grenadier who are shocked at the horrible sight of the muddy little boy on Victoria's jewelled throne and Brown drunk and disorderly, laughing at the scene. Disraeli comes into the throne room, is amused and touched. But Wheeler is seized and taken away by the grenadiers. Now go on with the story—

CHAPTER ELEVEN

"The truth is," says Arthur Hodge in his Aspects of the National Psychology, "that the Wheeler Case was one of those trifles which for reasons afterwards difficult to understand arouse a clamour out of all proportion to their importance. False rumor, we may say, perhaps more gossip giving rise to alarming reports in an irresponsible press, must be to blame. The most exhaustive research disposes one to insist that the Wheeler Case per se was of no importance whatever, and yet one must add that it led to mob violence and perhaps nearer than we know to political disaster."

At half after three that morning, a tall figure wrapped in a cloak appeared upon the North Terrace where Elizabeth used to take her constitutional. It was McHatten. He had been kept almost five hours in the main Guard Room, assisting at the inquisition of Wheeler not to say being subjected to one himself. He was tired but in no state for sleep. He had been subjected to something of an ordeal in that Guard Room.

The Grenadier Guards, as everyone knows, are a proud regiment. They are the First Foot Guards of the Royal Household Troops, and when the initiated speak of "the Guards" they do not mean the Household Cavalry. The Grenadiers are of the blood and tradition of the Cavaliers. At the time of the Commonwealth they went into exile with their princes; they fought in the Spanish Army and returned in glory at the Restoration. They fought also at Waterloo, and none of them in the Crimea, and at the Alma, where Wheeler died, had been resting gloriously on their laurels ever since. They protected the Royal Family, performed duties at Court, changed themselves beautifully at the mounting of the guard, and made the British heart swell with pride whenever they sallied out on parade. It should therefore be clear why the first minds in history to recognize Wheeler as a little disaster were Grenadier Guards minds.

It was not just that some beggar had managed to steal past the sentries and go skylarking in Windsor Castle at night; it was that the beggar was such a little beggar, and actually had gone Boo! to the Queen. It was also that he had not been apprehended even then, but hours later had been discovered by the Prime Minister sitting on the throne. No good trying to hush that one up. By tomorrow it would be the joke of every mess in England, and, what was equally terrible to contemplate, of every club in London. Major Fontoon declared that it was likely to prove the most humiliating thing the Regiment ever had been brought to face up to.

Major Fontoon Takes A Hand

But Fontoon had behaved as if it were all McHatten's fault.

"Damn it, man, why did you let him sit there on the blasted throne? Why didn't . . . Oh, the devil with the gillie! We've heard enough about him. Do you mean to say you let a grubby batman manage the show? What? . . . But you could have pulled the brat off before the Prime Minister came in, couldn't you?"

Major Fontoon paced up and down the Guard Room, savagely munching at his moustache, while McHatten stood furious and red in the face and the other young officers tried too obviously not to look at him. Wheeler was crouched where they had flung him, in a high Gothic chair. He was as dirty as when he had risen from the coal car, but as he watched the cagged-tiger pacing of the major, one noticed chiefly the whites of his eyes.

"You, boy!" Fontoon suddenly arraigned him, stabbing a finger into his face. Wheeler jumped. "Do you know what you've done? Hey? Stop wiggling! I've seen your kind. Sit still!"

Fontoon and the other officers naturally took the same view that Mr. Brown at first had assumed, that Wheeler was a tool of party or parties unknown, and they held on to it for dear life. Any lesser explanation would have been intolerable to them. For obviously, the less formidable the culprit, the more ridiculous they. On the other hand, should some man-sized conspiracy be turned up, they needn't feel so small themselves; it might even be said that they had nipped it in the bid—the Regiment's disgrace might be turned to its glory!

Wheeler Reveals Little

But grimly as they tried, they got little out of Wheeler. He, to begin with, was too frightened to make much of a case for himself.

They shook him and poked fingers into him and shouted threats at him, and the tears that he could not restrain made trenches through the soot on his face. He was a little hysterical. Useless. For Wheeler, despite their best efforts to prevent it, had escaped rather suddenly into sleep. His head had lurched forward into the lapels of the coat, one arm had slipped off the arm of the big oak chair and hung limply down, the dirty hand half open. And even Fontoon, looking at that hand, hadn't the heart to shake him again.

"Well . . . ah . . . h'm," the major exhaled, gazing down at him wearily. "He's not to leave this room. See that he's well guarded." He turned to McHatten. "I want you to make out a report, sir, a full report. You understand? And do it at once."

McHatten wrote the report. Standing afterwards on the terrace, he wished it had been the resignation of his commission. But no; that was exactly what Fontoon would give a Derby winner for, someone to lay the blame on and disgown. But he wasn't going to give it to them. He was going to stay and see it through. He thought with a pang of Emily. Broke. Hearing what she might hear of the affair. Inwardly he cursed Mr. Brown, and Wheeler, the cause of it all, and himself for being such a fool. He also cursed the Prime Minister.

The anger drained out of him; he felt a sickening emptiness. Was this what he was? Weak, dull, second-rate? Or, if not, why had he permitted himself to be made such a fool of in this affair?

His face was wet with fog. He turned and groped his way back into the castle.

Like Beating For Day

A royal cock at the Shaw Farm stretched his invisible neck and crowed. No sign of day was visible, but that didn't matter. He was like the old Welsh farmer who, rising before the sun, used to come out into the farmyard and beat on the ground; beating for day, they called it.

Pale lights appeared in scattered tower windows of the castle. Water splashed into basins, feet scraped dismally in passages, hands were chafed, coal was shovelled into banked fires, kettles were put to warm: a sickly yellow streaked the gloom to the east. The morning came on painfully.

The porter at the Tradesmen's Entrance leaned back in his chair and stretched his arms as a kitchen-maid entered his cubicle on her way to the cellars. "Allo, D'lay," he said, "Did you 'ear if they nabbed the burglar?"

Daisy stopped as suddenly as if she had run into a wall. "Burglar! 'Eavens, was there a burglar?"

"Why, bless yer, there was great larks abaht this 'ere burglar. Popped in on 'Er Majesty at 'er dinner table, and then popped off again."

"Oh!" said Daisy, eyeing the cellar door dubiously. "I wonder if they caught 'im."

"I dunno. But a nice dark cellar'd be the place for 'im to 'ide, now, wouldn't it?"

"It might, and I don't see anything funny, I'm sure. A burglar in the castle indeed! At this rifle it won't be long til a body's not safe dead in Westminster Abbey. Well, I'll not set foot down there till I know if they caught 'im." And Daisy scurried back the way she had come, followed by the porter's gleeful laughter.

Wheeler Exploit Day's Top News

By nine o'clock, news of Wheeler's exploit was current, in one form or another, from Bell Tower to Great Park. Nothing quite so picturesquely shocking had occurred in the castle within the memory of the oldest denizens and it caused a pleasant excitement. It was handled in the kitchens as arriving with their wares, and so passed out the gates and trickled down Peascod Street to the Royal Borough of Windsor and was heard by a porter at the White Hart Inn and a barman at the Crown and a fishmonger and a tradesman arriving at the Ship from Birmingham. It made a great stir. All agreed that he had frightened the Queen at dinner, and that he had been in the Throne Room, but the tinker thought that the dwarf had tried to stab Her Majesty, the bailiff that the child had tried to steal the gold plate, and the clergyman that he had claimed the Throne as his birthright. No one was sure what he had been doing in the Throne Room at the time, but it seemed evident that his presence proved the importance of the matter and lent a good deal of weight to the version the clergyman had heard.

General Ponsonby had written crisp memoranda to the Governor of the Castle, the Captain of the Guard, the Master of the Household, and the two Scotland Yard men on duty at the castle. These notes recited tersely the occurrence at the dinner table and stated that Her Majesty required thorough investigations with a view to fixing blame and insuring against any such disgraceful incursions of her privacy in the future, and the general added that she awaited full reports from all departments concerned.

Mr. Brown Officially Ill

The two policemen were taken by surprise, for the efficient Ponsonby had been the first to inform them of the fact that a child had comeup. They hurried to his office to ascertain where they might arrest the criminal, and when the general proved unable to tell them exactly, took up the scent in the Servants' Hall, where Mr. Naseby directed them to the guard At the Guard House, however, it appeared that no one could tell them anything. They were referred directly to General Lord Frederick Ingleby, who was on the month being November, the trouble was that Lord Frederick was fox hunting in Sussex. The policemen departed.

At the third, under the deferential shaking of a young under-footman, Mr. Brown came awake.

"I'm sorry, sir," he started at your door, but you didn't hear me. The Queen his sent for you twice, sir."

Mr. Brown sat up at a lunge, fling the footman's hand from his arm and squinted at him.

"Queen?" he said thickly, blinking about. "Queen of?"

"Yes, sir. I was to say Her Majesty wanted you at once."

"She'll no' see me the day! She sent Disdon' well home," roared Mr. Brown, and collapsed.

There was Nothing for it but to tell Victoria that her guest was ill. She pursed her lips, but said nothing. She kent well enough that her gillie was full, for she kent her gillie, and in fact had read a preliminary report of the Wheeler case, sent her by the guard, which had spared Mr. Brown not at all, though they had sent it back without comment.

Better U.K. Market Is Seen For Canada

By NORMAN M. M. MACLEOD
Exclusive to The Bulletin

OTTAWA, Feb. 28.—(BUP)—Canada's chances of selling its food surpluses to Britain "very easily may be helped by the now precarious position of the Labor government," a high government source said today.

The source figured prominently in all Anglo-Canadian food contract negotiations for several years. He declined use of his name.

He said he believed Prime Minister Clement Attlee's cabinet would change its policies about doing business with Canada in the future if it had not already decided to do so. It likely would listen more carefully to suggestions by experts in the British food ministry, he added.

EXPERTS FAVOR US

"Canada always has had the food experts of the British government in her corner, even during the most recent talks," he said.

"The trouble has been that the (British) cabinet has refused to accept the advice tendered it. Not so long ago, some of the food ministry experts actually walked out of a conference room because the goverment was paying no attention to their advice, which was to buy from Canada."

British cabinet members now would be willing to listen to their experts "whose advice follows along generally conservative lines," he suggested.

On the whole, the blame for Canada's comparative failure in the last round of British food negotiations was attributed here to Sir Stafford Cripps, chancellor of the British exchequer.

CRIPPS HELD SWAY

Canadian representatives tentatively won the support of most British cabinet ministers and their top aides but Cripps' power usually carried negotiations the way he wanted them to go.

Empire Trade Parley Is Asked at Ottawa

By John E. Bird
Special to the Bulletin

OTTAWA, Feb. 28.—(BUP)—Canada should call a Commonwealth trade conference immediately to try to help Britain and the sterling area out of their dollar difficulties, Earl Rowe (PC-Dufferin Simcoe) said yesterday.

Rowe told parliament Canada should not write off the Commonwealth as a principal market for Canadian exports.

"Why look to a country like the United States, that produces the same surpluses as we do, for our markets?" he demanded.

Rowe, chief opposition critic of government trade policy, charged that the wartime and post-war bulk purchasing plan had cost Canadian farmers more than a billion dollars. The plan, he said, had been a "costly nightmare" for Canadian farmers.

"The British Commonwealth of Nations and the sterling area should be cultivated as the greatest market that we have ever had," he said.

Canada, he added, should also make more concerted efforts to find markets in the Far East.

For these two reasons, Rowe said, Canada should call a Commonwealth trade conference and ask "what can we do?"

He hinted that Canada might even make a loan to the sterling area to assist it in maintaining purchases in this country.

Labor's Vote Was 46.3 Pct. Tories' 43.1

By The Canadian Press

Labor, going into the new House of Commons with an overall majority of only seven seats received 46.3 per cent of the 28,858,805 votes cast in Thursday's British general election, complete results showed today.

Conservatives and their allies obtained 43.1 per cent of the record vote.

The Conservatives, winning 296 seats and 12,480,318 votes, increased their percentage sharply from the 37 per cent complied in the 1945 election when they polled 9,134,967 votes. The number of Conservative seats jumped from 203.

TWO PCT. LESS

Labor's percentage was almost two per cent less than in 1945 when the party rolled into office with 11,967,736 votes. This time, Labor obtained 13,314,941, winning 315 seats.

The Liberals got nine per cent of the vote—the same as in 1945.

A feature of the hard-fought election was the drop in the vote compiled by other parties —from six per cent in 1945 to 1.4 per cent in 1950.

Reuters reported Herbert Morrison, deputy prime minister told a Labor party celebration the party would be "wise to be prepared for another election sooner rather than later." He added he was making no predictions.

Senator OK's Jobless Act

OTTAWA, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Senator W. M. Aseltine (PC-Sask.) last night criticized unemployment insurance as "a feeble substitute for work" in a senate debate on a government bill to extend benefits on the insurance.

The bill received second reading in the senate and is scheduled for Royal assent today so it can go into effect March 1.

He disagreed with government figures estimating 375,000 unemployed at Feb. 7, and said there are at least 400,000 non-workers.

He could not agree with the government claim that this unemployment was "largely seasonal." In the 30's, when there was a serious depression, the total number of unemployed was only about twice the present number.

BENEFIT PAYMENTS

Senator Aseltine said some $200,000,000 has been paid out in benefits since the act came into force. This seemed a great deal in view of the fact that there had been fairly full employment since 1942.

Senator F. W. Gershaw (L-Alberta) said Canada could well spend less money on beautifying Ottawa and more on irrigating the prairies. There had been "heartbreaking delays" in western irrigation programs. No investment would bring better results than money spent on irrigation.

U.S. Nordics Live Longer

MONTREAL, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Delegates to the International Blue Cross and Blue Shield convention were told by their top officers yesterday that state medicine does not necessarily mean a higher health standard and that the state should leave the individual free to adopt whatever health-insurance plan he wishes.

During a round-table discussion, Dr. Paul R. Hawley of Chicago, chief executive officer of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield commissions, was asked why the United States, with the world's highest standard of living, has a health standard below those of Norway, Sweden and Finland. The three Scandinavian countries have compulsory state-medicine plans.

Dr. Hawley replied that, although Swedes, Norwegians and Finns in their own countries live longer than Americans in the U.S., the Scandinavians live still longer than Americans in the U.S., which has no enforced medical plan.

Surveys in Minnesota and North and South Dakota showed that Scandinavians in those states have a longer life span than their countrymen who have remained in their native lands.

Prominent Directors For Federated Pete

Federated Petroleums, which is hitting toward big time in the oil business, has added three distinguished directors to its board. They are William A. Rockefeller of the Rockefeller family of New York, Brig. James B. Weir of Montreal, and Richard J. Burns of Vancouver and Calgary.

Rockefeller and Brig. Weir were also elected directors ofFoothills, Southwest Petroleums, Lowery Petroleums and of Foothills, Southwest Petroleums, Lowery Petroleums and Time Oils.

The companies are closely interlocked. Federated owns 80 per cent of Foothills; Foothills owns 63 per cent of Southwest Pete; Federated owns 86 per cent of Lowery Petroleums, and 65 per cent of Time Oils.

Time Oils is presently engaged in two farmout drilling agreements with Texaco Exploration a few miles west of the Golden Spike field.

NEWS EXPECTED

Some highly interesting news may come soon from Imperial's Waybrook No. 1 well, 30 miles north of Edmonton.

Casing has been set in the D-3 at 4,075 feet. Imperial's announcement does not name the formation, merely that the well is standing cemented with seven inch casing set. However, judging from various other wells in the immediate territory the well is bottomed in D-3 at its present depth of 4,075 feet.

Last Friday Waybrook No. 1 ran a test of the interval 4,059 to 4,063 feet and recovered 20 feet of mud only with valve open 15 minutes. A test of 4,063 to 4,075 feet yielded salt water. The well may be plugging back for perforation of the zone immediately above.

This is the well which got 7,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily in the Viking sand at 2,684 feet. From 3,794 to 3,804 feet, presumably D-2, a test resulted in a 1,440 foot rise of salt water. At 4,075 feet the well is probably 15 to 20 feet in D-3.

DISAPPOINTMENTS

A not so happy situation exists at three other wells today—Imperial Eyehill, Rio Bravo Bird 15-20, and California Standard Winterburn Province No. 1.

The Eyehill well, five miles west of the Saskatchewan border in the Provost area is running radio active log at 7,231 feet. The well had the announced intenion of drilling to basement and this has apparently been accomplished. It is common to run well surveys prior to abandonment.

Rio Bravo announces the abandonment of its Bird 15-20 a follow up to Rio Bravo Ronald about 30 miles east of the Stettler field. The two wells were drilled about three miles apart without success.

Three miles west of Edmonton California Standard has stopped coring and is drilling at 5,093 feet, 205 feet beyond where it was drilling in green shale late last week. The D-3 would ordinarily have been expected to occur by this time. Coring for D-3 had commenced prior to 4,942 feet.

OILFIELD BRIEFS

Oil wells in the Excelsior field 18 miles north of Edmonton jumped to five today as Rio Bravo began the completion of its second, Carruthers No. 6-3, and Imperial Excelsior No. 2 got oil rises of 3,660 feet and 2,580 feet on two sparate tests, fourteen days after spudding in.

On test of 3,792 to 3,807 feet, Imperial Excelsior No. 2 blew gas at the rate of 40,000 cubic feet a day and oil came surging to the surface in 25 minutes. When the pipe was pulled it contained 3,660 feet of oil and 90 feet of mud. Coring continued to 3,817 feet. On a test of the new interval, 2,580 feet of oil was recovered.

Every thinking person will concede that the control of motor traffic is one of the nation's greatest civic problems. The problem is greater than fire, for it annually takes more lives and destroys more property; greater than crime, for it involves all humanity. STIRRING DRAMA of Los Angeles' underworld, "Criss Cross,"tells story of young couple drawn into web of crime. Starring Burt Lancaster and Yvonne De Carlo, film starts today at Rialto.

'Criss Cross' Tells About Double-Cross

Gripping drama of underworld adventure, "Criss Cross" tells the story of the age-old double cross.

Co-starring Burt Lancaster, Yvonne De Carlo, and Dan Duryea, the film uses the streets of Los Angeles for the touch of realism in the sensational production.

The story tells of a young man, as portrayed by Burt Lancaster who returns to Los Angeles because of his love for Anna, his ex-wife. He discovers that Anna, played by Yvonne De Carlo, is travelling in bad company, and has been seen in honky-tonk joints with a notorious hoodlum, Dan Duryea.

TRIES TO FORGET

He tries to forget Anna, and obtains his old job as guard on an armored money-carrying car. But Anna phones him and they start going out together, to race tracks, night clubs and other fun spots. Lancaster's friend disapproves, but he refuses to listen.

The momentum of the drama increases when Anna returns to her gangster friends and builds up to an exploding point with the holdup of the armored car. Adding gripping suspense to every minute of the reel, it ends in one of the most surprising climaxes in cinematic history.

"Criss Cross," which is directed by Robert Siodmak and produced by Michael Kraike, starts today at the Rialto Theatre.

Photography Proves Useful In Oil Hunt

OTTAWA, Feb. 28.—(BUP)—The RCAF's aerial photographic laboratory here turned out more than 1,000,000 prints last year, air force headquarters announced today.

The year's total was almost double 1949 production and was the first time that prints had topped the million-mark. It took 130 tons of paper to produce the prints.

Some 200,000 were turned out in a two-week period last summer, with personnel working three eight-hour shifts until the job was done.

It was a rush order for aerial photos needed for Exercise Sweetbriar, the joint U.S.-Canadian Arctic manoeuvres just ended.

IN OIL BUSINESS

More than 250,000 of the prints made during the year were new photos, taken during the annual summer survey season, the RCAF said. The remainder were reprint orders, done for federal and provincial government mapping agencies, military training purposes, and for commercial concerns.

In addition to their value in military mapping, the prints were used in many ways commercially, the air force said.

They were closely connected with development of Canada's natural resources.

One oil company bought 28,000 prints at a cost of more than $10,000, and others had been sold to mining, lumbering and hydro-electric concerns.

Red Deer Plans Big Spending On Facilities

RED DEER, Feb. 28.—Capital expenditures of $125,000 for the 1950 water works, paving, sewer, sidewalk and drainage program were approved by city council last night.

Two readings were given bylaws authorizing the issue of debentures.

Approval of the ratepayers is required before the work can be undertaken and a vote will be taken April 3.

Program is divided into two parts with separate ballots provided for each.

First is the $70,000 money bylaw covering $20,000 for sewer construction, $23,500 for sidewalks and the remainder for paving.

The second is a $55,000 bylaw covering $34,500 for water main extensions and $21,500 for installation of water meters.

Operations of the waterworks department showed a loss last year and the increased population has resulted in such a strain on present facilities expensive new equipment will be required within the next few years to cope with current demands, council was told.

The council decided to install water meters throughout the city as a measure to reduce wastage.

Both flat rates and meter rates will be hoisted in order to make the department pay its way.

Provision will be made in the next few years for installation of additional waterworks equipment to increase capacity at an estimated cost of $205,000.

Tax Staff Will Change

OTTAWA, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Income tax division permanent staff will be increased by some 3,000 employes, it was learned today.

The action does not mean an increase in staff. A large number of temporary employes are being given permanent status.

Scheduled for the 1950-51 fiscal year, the increase was anticipated in estimates tabled in the House of Commons Friday by Finance Minister Abbott.

Major increase will be in district tax offices where present permanent staffs of 2,450 will be increased to 5,300. Permanent appointments throughout the department will be made of assessors, payroll auditors and clerks.

U.S. Women Discard 'Much As They Dare'

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—(UP)—Something new is coming off in Hollywood. The gals are going in for "outside undies" now.

Honest. Wearing their underwear right out in the open they are.

Jack Cagan is the gent behind this new "let it show" business. He camouflages undies to look like clothes.

"I call the bras 'glamour-tops,'" Cagan explained. "They can be the top half of a dress, playsuit, cocktail dress, or beautiful evening gown. You're really wearing a bra, see—but it looks like a beautiful decollete get-up."

"This is an era of extremes," Cagan said. "The American woman is discarding as much clothing as she dares."

'Peg Woman Admits Drugs Easy To Get

WINNIPEG, Feb. 28.—(BUP)—Elsie Bryan, a Winnipeg woman who admitted taking drugs for 22 years, said in Winnipeg police court today that she bought narcotics regularly on the city's streets.

Mrs. Bryan identified John Kisick, charged with conspiracy to unlawfully sell drugs, as the peddler from whom she brought heroin on a Winnipeg street corner. She said she brought heroin from Kisick at five dollars a capsule.

Three other persons were charged with Kisick in the case.

Inside Hollywood

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—Abbott and Costello are still at odds with their studio.

Lou Costello tells me there has been no progress toward an agreement with Universal-International, with whom the comedy team is feuding.

"I've been on suspension since last spring when I got sick," said the comic. "And I'm just as happy to stay there until we get a better deal.

"Right now I'm recuperating from my first illness. Since then I've had a gall bladder operation. My schedule doesn't call for me to start recuperating from that for a couple of months."

Abbott and Costello were recently chosen No. 3 in the Motion Picture Herald's poll of movie moneymakers. I asked if that would help their arguments with the studio.

"No," said Lou. "We've been right up there in the list for 10 years and it hasn't made any difference with the studio."

NOTES 'N' STUFF

Ida Lupino is reading a script from RKO. It would be her first acting job in well over a year. She now is producing and directing her third production, "Nobody Safe," and wants to get back on the other side of the camera. First, she'll put on 10 pounds.

Elizabeth Taylor, whose life is full of celebrations, perked her 18th birthday yesterday. Her one big fear is that she'll giggle through her own wedding. She's the giggling type.

"Cinderella" is reported doing big business in its openings. In many theatres it is replacing "Stromboli," which has failed to do big business after its first-day engagements. That's quite a contrast in pictures.

Esther Williams leaves this week for Hawaii, where she'll make "Pagan Love Song." Ben Gage and their son will accompany her.
